PRELIMINARY MEMORANDA
OF THE
ABBAY OF BATTLE, OR DE BELLO;
WITH HISTORICAL PARTICULARS
THE ABBOTS OF BATTLE.

THE decisive battle of Hastings, fought Oct. 14, 1066, which deprived Harold of his life and crown, and by which William, Duke of Normandy, achieved the Conquest of England, was the grand object which the Conqueror, by the founding of this Monastery, purposed to perpetuate to after ages. The circumstances attending the invasion are matter of the Chronicles of the time, and appertain so much to the general history of the period, that it seems almost irrelevant to repeat them here.

The thought of building this Monastery is said to have been first suggested, or rather, as it would seem, encouraged, by William Faber, a Monk of Marmoustier; which Monastery being dedicated to S. Martin, is said also to have been the reason why it was dedicated to the honour of the Holy Trinity and S. Martin; though Leland says, "anno dom. 1085, suadente Remigio episcopo Dorcastrensi, qui prius fuit Monachus de Fescamp, Gul. Magnus fundavit abbatiam de Bello."*

In the generality of Instruments granted to the Monastery, it is termed the Abbey of S. Martin only. It was not many miles from Hastings, which, says Bishop Tanner, was probably the reason of Thomas Rudborne's saying, that King William the Conqueror founded Cœnobium in honorem S. Martini apud Hastyng. Vid. Angl. Sacr., vol. i. p. 258. Malmesbury had, however, made the same mistake before him, "Alterum Monasterium Hastings ædificavit sancto Martino quod cognominatuo De Bello."

* Collectanea, Ayloff's edit. 1770, vol. ii. p. 390, as quoted in the splendid republication, with vast additions, of Dugdale's Monasticon; the several grants, in this collection, corroborate the particulars there given.

The high altar of the Monastery is said to have been erected on the spot where Harold and the royal standard fell. Gough, in his additions to Camden, says, "The high altar stood on the spot where Harold's body and standard were found, which is just at the eastern white gate of the yard wall: the foundations were not long since removed, the scite having served for a burying place for the Catholics."* Yet Malmesbury says only, "Altare ecclesiæ est in loco ubi Haroldi pro patriæ charitate occisi cadaver exanime inventum est."

The Charters granted to the Monks of Battle by King William the Conqueror were numerous. The privileges detailed in the largest Charter, erroneously called "Carta prima," in the Register † or Cartulary, are great. The Monastery was not only to be exempt from Episcopal jurisdiction, but was to enjoy its exemption in as ample a manner as the Metropolitan Church of Canterbury. It had the rights of free warren in all its manors, treasure trove, and even sanctuary. The circuit round the Abbey, also, called the Leuga, was freed from every kind of tax and service.‡ The Manor of Wi, with its attendant royalties, in Kent; the Manors of Alsistone in Sussex, Limenesfeld in Surrey, Hov in Sussex, Craumareis in Oxfordshire, and Bristwoldinton in Berkshire, with the Churches of Radinges, Culintun, and S. Olave in Exeter, formed the chief endowment.

Two of the Conqueror's Charters, relating to the general liberties of Battle, were each designated by the name of "Humana Mens," probably because it was declared in them that the Church of Battle should be "libera et quieta in perpetuum ab omni exactione et omnibus quæcunque mens humana cogitare potest." Another liberates the Church "ab omni Theloneo." There is one "de Corredio Abbatis." Three relate to the

* Edit. 1789, vol. i. p. 204.

† Bishop Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, edit. Nasmith, 1787, speaks of this being then in the possession of Sir Whistler Webster, Bart. It is now part of these Collections; and the writer was not aware of the erroneous appellation of Carta prima, which that Charter bears in the Register, till after the sheet was irremediably worked off at press.

‡ Sir William Burrell, in his Manuscript Collections for Sussex, says the Parish of Battle, before the Conquest, was called the Parish of S. Mary in the Wood; but William the Conqueror, when he built and endowed the Abbey, exempted that Parish from Episcopal jurisdiction, and made the Incumbent, afterwards called the Dean, receive institution and induction from the Abbot; by a composition between whom, and the Bishop of Chichester, the latter was to grant the Dean a licence to enter upon the cure of souls. This, he adds, is what Dean Watson alludes to, when, in his Complete Incumbent, he speaks of the Dean of Battle. Donat. MS. Brit. Mus. 5679, p. 67.

The Parish, under its prior name, is mentioned in some of the earlier Feofments; and the Dean is noticed frequently, particularly in Instruments in which the Abbey was immediately concerned.

liberties of the Leuga. One to the Market* granted to the Monastery, and one reciting the gift of the Meadow of Bodeham.

The Abbey lands, as stated in the Domesday Survey, are thus particularized. The Manor of Wi was rated at seven solins. The soc and sac of twenty-two hundreds appertained to it. In Sussex, the Abbey held Alsistone, which paid geld for forty-four hides in the hundred of Totenore, six hides and a half, including Bocheham, in the Abbot's own rape; and portions of land of a much smaller kind, which were let to the Earl of Ow, the Earl of Moretaine, and other tenants in Bece, Wasingate, Nirefeld, Peneherst, Hov, Pilesham, Cedesfeld, Bollinton, Croherst, Witinges, and Holintun. In Surrey, twenty-five hides at Limenesfelde. In Berkshire, the Manor of Bristoldestone, which had been Harold's, in whose time it was rated at ten hides; five "hagæ," or houses in Wallingford, and the Church of Redinges, [now Reading,] with an appendage of eight hides of land. In Devonshire, the Church of Colitone, with a single hide, and the Church of S. Olave, in Exeter, with seven hides of land appended. In Oxfordshire, five hides at Craumareis; these also had belonged to Harold. In Essex, one hide at Atahov, and one at Hersa.

The Conqueror lived not to see the Monastery of his foundation completed, for although Gausbertus the Abbot was appointed in 1076, the Church was not consecrated till 1094. It is evident, however, from the authorities quoted by the editors of Dugdale, that there was a temporary Church anterior to that so consecrated. King William Rufus was present at the ceremony; and, by a Charter granted upon that occasion, added the Churches of Saforde, Exelingis, Trilaune, Middlehala, Nortune, Eilesham, Mendlesham, Bramford, and Brantham, with their several appendages, to the endowment of the Abbey. Walkeline, Bishop of Winchester; Ralph, Bishop of Chichester; Osmund, Bishop of Salisbury; John, Bishop of Bath; William, Bishop of Durham; Roger, Bishop of Coutance, in Normandy; and Gundulf, Bishop of Rochester, were all present, with a numerous assemblage of temporal Barons, at the consecration.

Besides this Charter of additions, and two others confirming the general liberties of Battle Abbey, Rufus granted to the Monks, first the Manor, and afterwards the Church of Bromham, in Wiltshire; a distinct Charter, confirming the liberties of Wy; a third Charter of general privilege, confirming treasure trove, and a Charter relating to Bodeham.

The Charters of Henry the First to Battle Abbey, as noticed in the enumeration of the contents of the Chartulary, were still more numerous than those of his predecessors. Exclusive of his general confirmations, the more important were the Charters "pro excambio de Radinge," and "de Curia habenda per Omnia."

* The Market at Battle, till the year 1600, was always held on Sunday; hence several of these Feofments are dated on that day of the week. Thursday is now the Market day.

Other Instruments from King Stephen, King Henry the Second, King Richard the First, and one of King John, granting the custody of the temporalities and goods of the Abbey to the Monks upon the decease of their Abbots, are extant in the Chartulary.

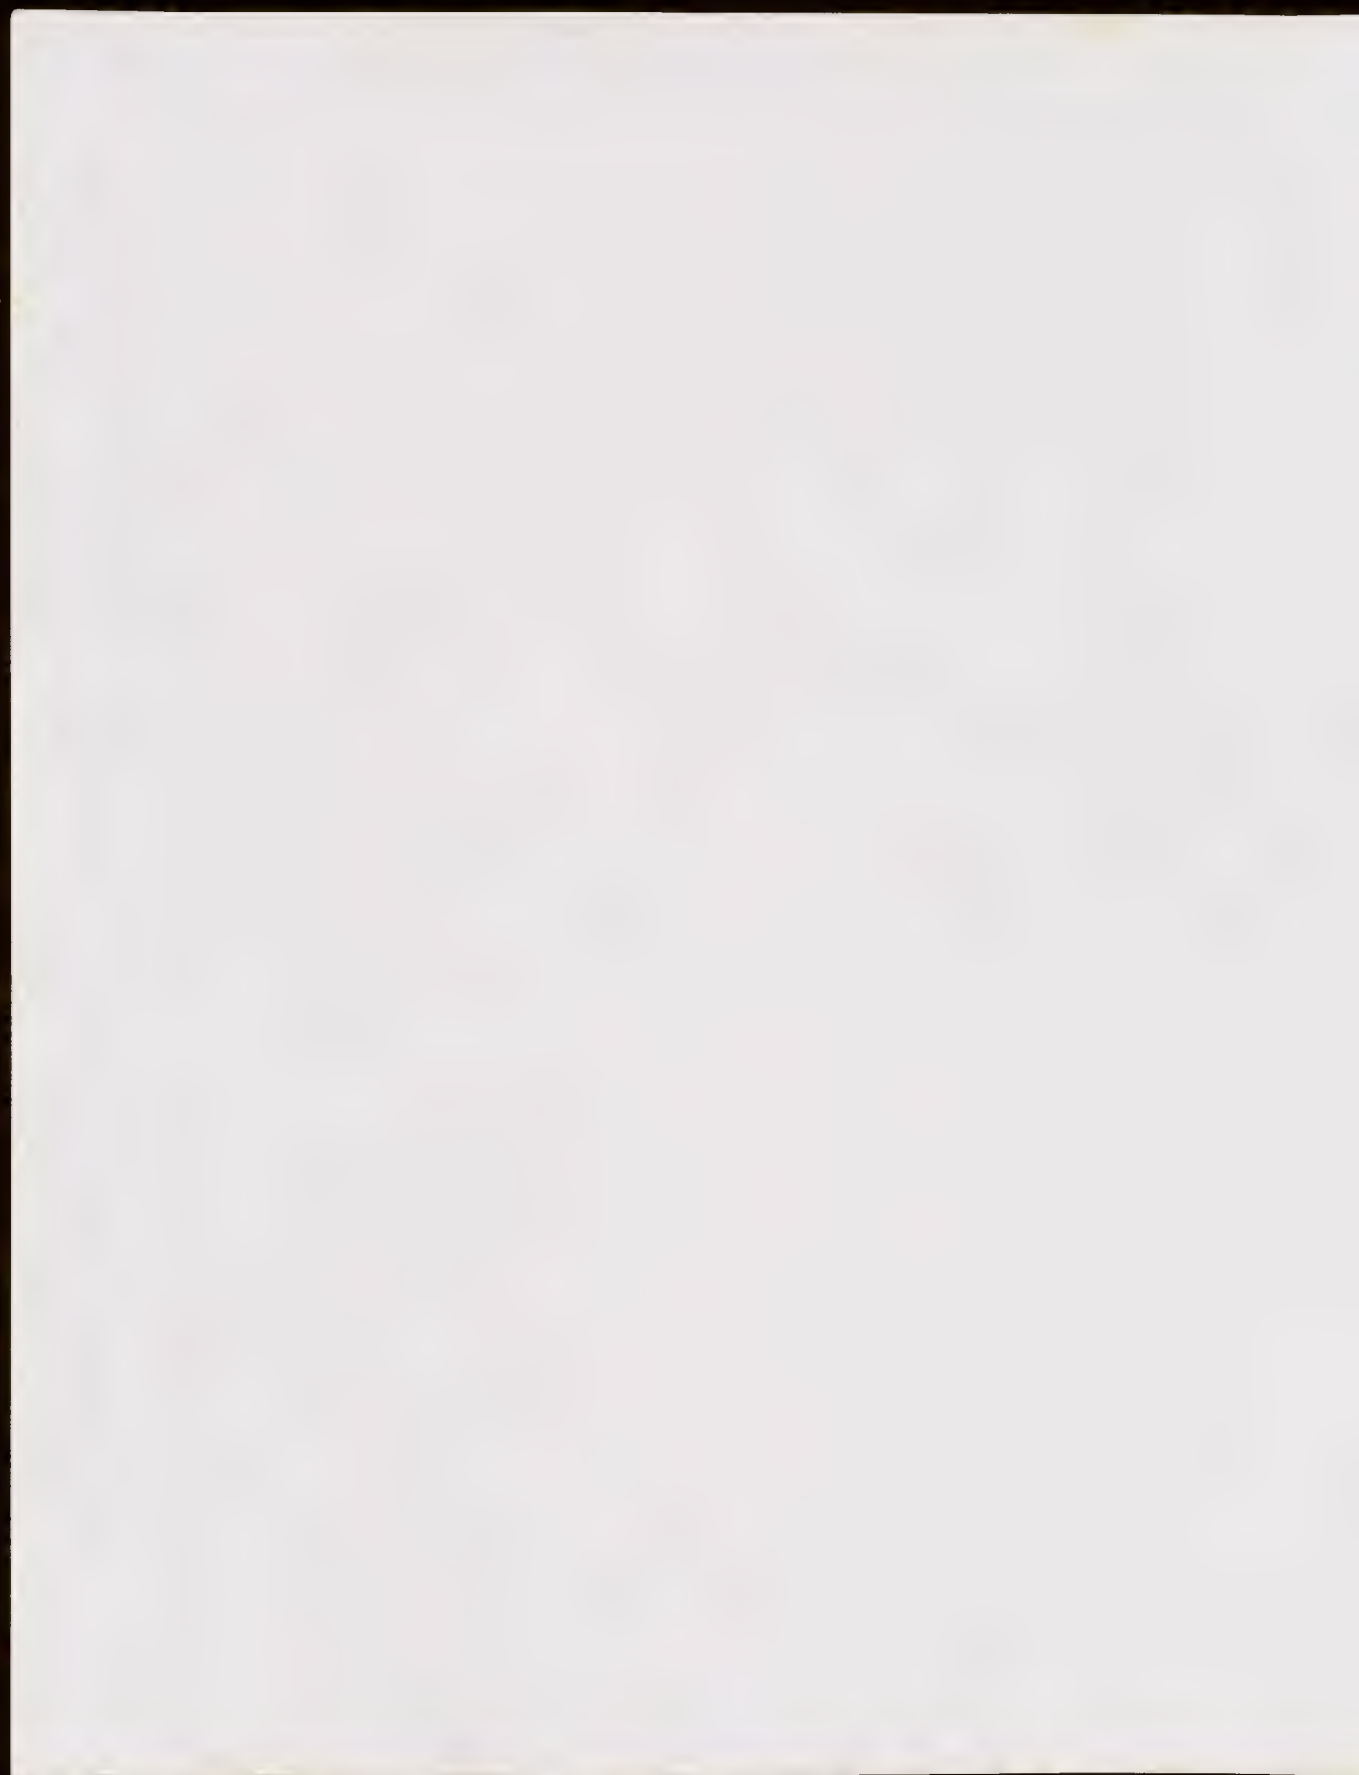

King Henry the Third granted two Charters to this Monastery; one, of general confirmation; and the second, 'de Justiciariis habendis,' in the year 1242.

Edward the Second conferred on the Monks of Battle several Charters. He granted them a Market and Fair at Havekherst; the Advowson of the Church of Hoton; a Licence to acquire Lands to the value of Forty Pounds per annum; and a remission of the Fine usually made on the confirmation of a new Abbot.

Edward the Third, in the twelfth of his reign, granted the Abbot, Allan de Ketlyng, Licence to fortify and embattle his Monastery.

Henry the Fourth's Charter recites and confirms the principal Grants till his time. Such are the more important of the Royal Charters to the Abbey of Battle. The Papal and Episcopal instruments which follow them, in the Chartulary,* are fewer in number, and in the earlier time were either confirmations of privileges, or grants of tythes; those of later date mostly relate to appropriations.

* In the Chartulary, and various Feofments, occur frequent mention of the possessions of this Monastery in Southwark. Stowe says, The Abbot of Battle's Inn, in London, was between the Bridge House and Battle-bridge, on the bank of the River Thames; the Walks and Gardens thereunto appertaining being on the other side of the way. Before, the gate of the said house, he adds, was called the Maze, which is now an Inn called the Flower de Lys. Battle-bridge, is so called of Battle-Abbey, for that it standeth on the ground, and over a water-course flowing out of the Thames, pertaining to that Abbey, and was therefore both builded and repaired by the Abbots of that House, as being hard adjoining to the Abbot's lodgings. Survey of London, &c., edit. 1633, p. 459.

ABBOTS OF BATTLE.

THE Abbots of Battle were mitred, and it is almost nugatory to observe that they were regularly summoned to Parliament till the period of the dissolution of the Papal supremacy in England.

To Willis's Hist. of Mitred Abbies, and the new edition of Dugdale, the writer is indebted for much of the materiel here embodied; although the original Feofments had, previously to an inspection of the last named work, served to point out several of the erroneous positions which Willis had assumed in his notices of the Abbots.

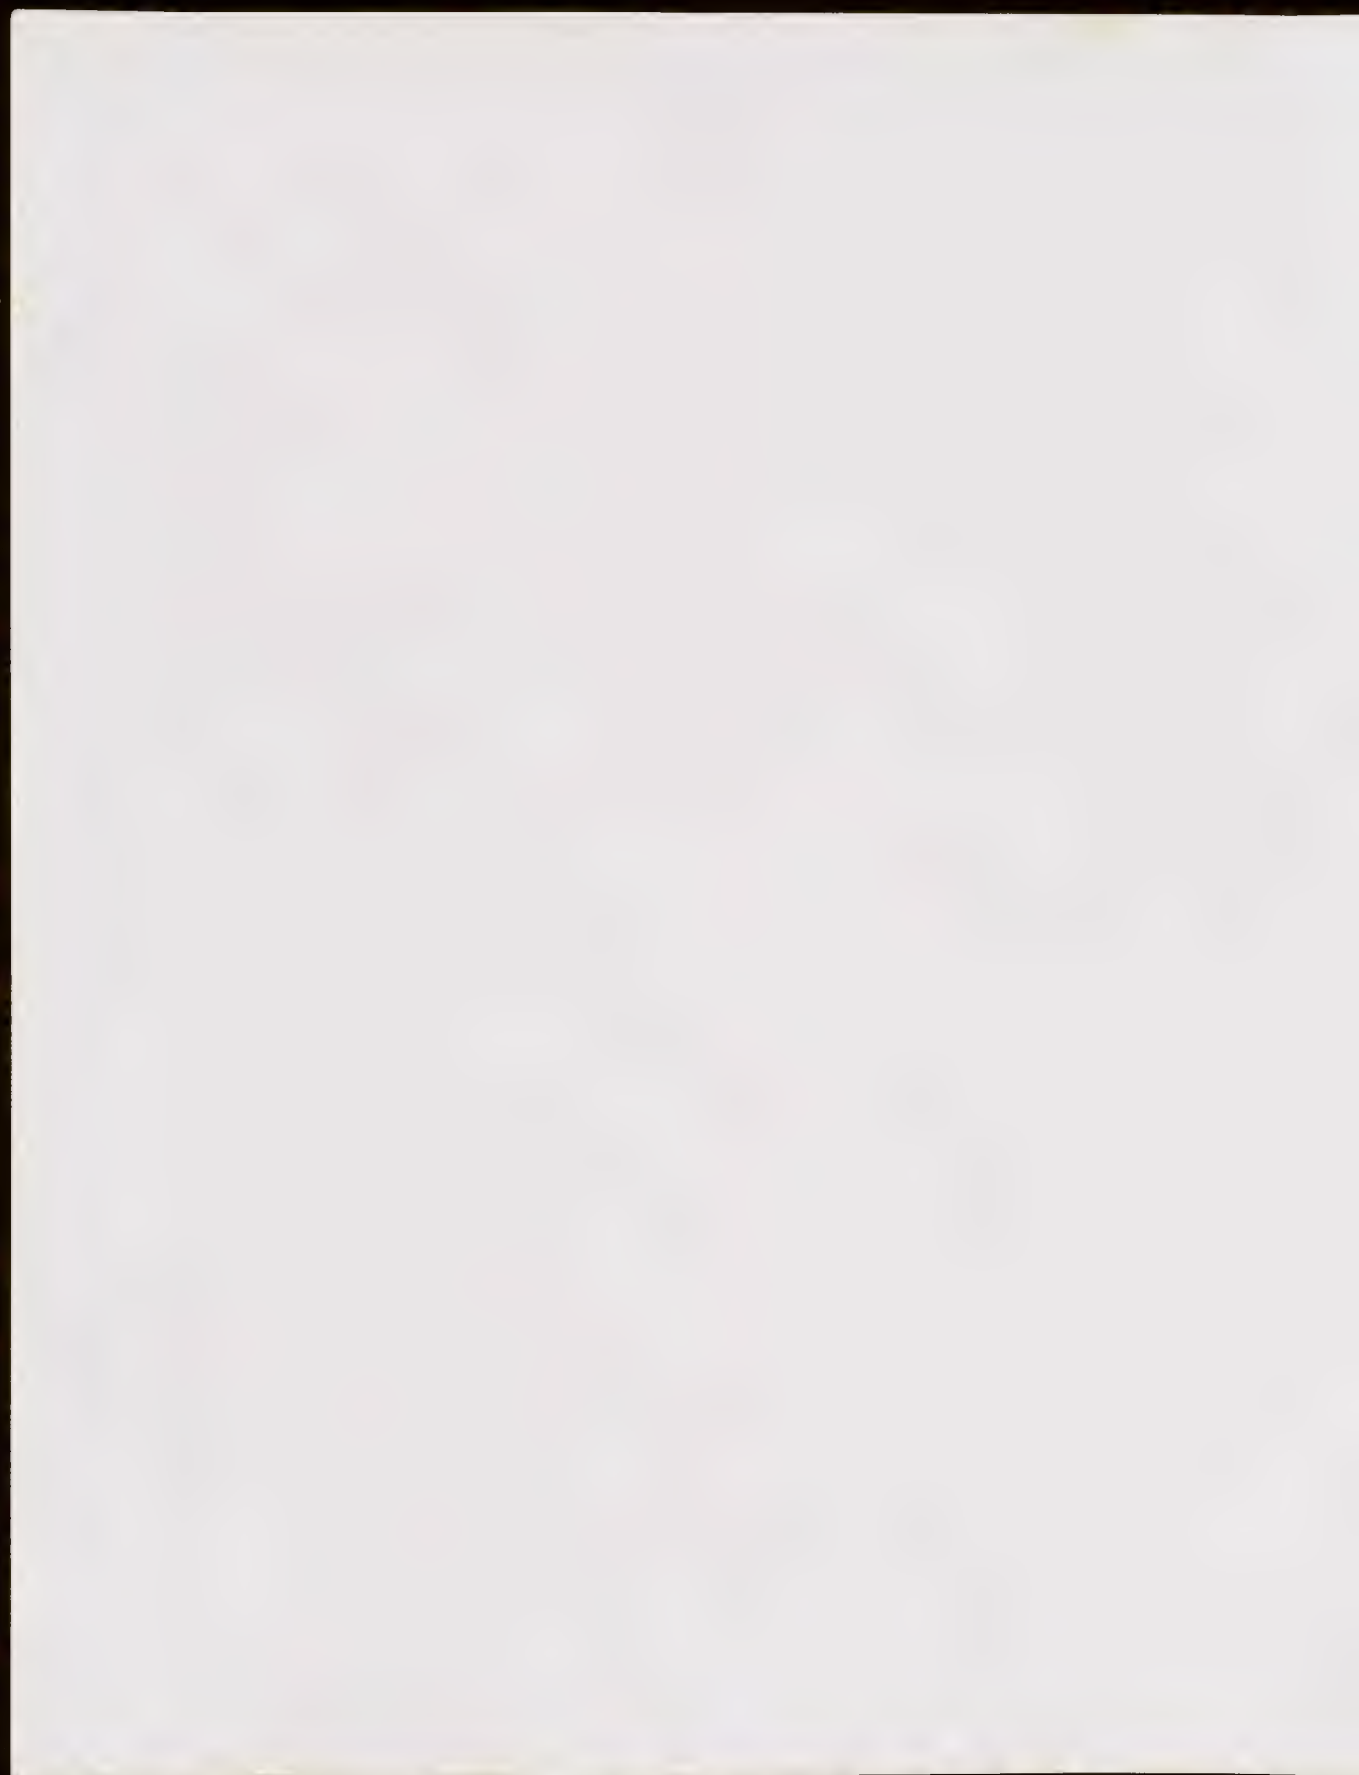

ROBERT BLANCARD, a Monk of Marmoustier, in Normandy, whom King William the Conquer had, with other Monks of that place, brought to England, was designed for the Abbacy, but he going back into Normandy, to settle some affairs before he assumed that dignity, was drowned while returning to England.

GAUSBERTUS, another Monk of Marmoustier, was thereupon constituted Abbot in 1076. He is frequently mentioned in the Cartulary, as "primo Abbati Gausberto." Willis, in his Mitred Abb., vol. i. p. 34, says, Gausbert died, and had Ralph for his successor, in 1089. The editors of Dugdale, on the authority of the Cotton. MS., entitled Liber de Situ Ecclesiæ Belli, state him to have died on the 6th of the kalends, or 27th of August, 1095; and with Ordericus Vitalis, p. 505, name

HENRY, as his immediate successor. He had been previously Prior of Christ Church, Canterbury, and was elected on the 11th of June, 1096. He died July 19, 1102, and was buried in the Chapter-house of his Monastery. The custody of the Abbey, during the vacancy which followed this Abbot's decease, was first conferred on one of the King's Chaplains, named Vivian, and afterwards on one Geoffrey or Gausfrid, a Monk of Carileph. Willis says he was instituted as Abbot; and after his death the Abbot of Thorney had the Monastery committed to him, until his relative,

RALPH, a Monk of Caen, was confirmed in that office, in 1107. Dugdale's editors say, Ralph had accompanied Archbishop Lanfranc to England, and was Prior of Rochester, under Bishop Gundulph. His election occurred upon the feast of S. Peter ad Vincula, or August 1, 1107; and he died on Sept. 28, 1124, at the age of eighty-four.

WARNER, or WARNERIUS, a Monk of Christ Church, Canterbury, was the next Abbot. He was installed May 25, 1124, according to the editors of Dugdale; but this is making Warner to be Abbot before the decease of Ralph. On all hands, it is however stated, that he resigned his Abbey in 1138, and retired to the Monastery of S. Pancras, at Lewes.

WALTER DE LUCY, brother to Richard de Lucy, a powerful Baron of King Stephen's Court, was elected Abbot, January 8, 1139. He maintained his right of exemption from Episcopal Jurisdiction against Hilarius, Bishop of Chichester, in a controversy which historians have made matter of record. Walter de Lucy died July 22, 1171, and his brother, Richard de Lucy, presided in the Monastery for the ensuing four years, till Odo, Prior of Canterbury, was promoted to the Abbey, July 10, 1175. Leland notices this Odo, otherwise Woode; and in his list of the books he saw in the library of Battle Abbey, particularises the "Glosæ Odonis Abbatis de Bello super Psalterium," as also an "Expositio super Libri Regum." See his Collectanea, Ayloffe's edition, 1770, vol. i. p. 68. Willis says, Odo died in 1199; the Annals of the Church of Winchester say, in the month of March, 1200.

JOHN OF DOVER, or DE DUVRA, according to the editors of Dugdale, on the authority of the Cotton. MS. Nero, D. 11, fol. 234, succeeded to the Abbacy soon after Odo's death, on the calends, or first of May, 1200. He is mentioned in a Feofment of the year 1203. Upon this Abbot's death, which Willis states to have happened July 21, 1213, after a vacancy of some duration,

HUGH was elected, who, in 1218, was advanced to the see of Carlisle, which had been vacant thirty-two years. He adds, I do not know whether he held the Abbey in commendam with his bishopric, but this is certain, that he died on his return from Rome in 1223, at an Abbey in Burgundy, and that his successor in this Abbacy was

RICHARD, a Monk of Battle. The Annals of Dunstaple mention the election of Richard, as Abbot of Battle, in 1218; so that it appears, upon the elevation to the episcopal dignity of Hugh; Richard, the Monk, followed immediately upon that advancement. Among the Charters of the late Lord Frederic Campbell, now in the British Museum, is a "Conventio inter Ricardum Abbatem et Conventum de Bello, et Nicholaum Abbatem et Conventum de Ponto Roberti de Marisco qui jacet inter Capennesse et Fletun, an. 1222." The Annals of Tewkesbury notice the death of Richard, the Abbot, on August 30, 1235; when he was succeeded by RALPH DE COVENTRY, Cellarer of Battle: the royal assent was given to his consecration, Nov. 6, 1235. Willis was unable to discover the date of his resignation or death, but he is mentioned in the Chartulary under June 1251.

REGINALD, Prior of Brecknock, was promoted to the Abbey Nov. 27, 1261. The editors of Dugdale, in their list of the Priors of Brecknock, vol. iii. p. 262, on the authority of Cole's MS. in Museo, vol. xxviii, say, "Reginald, the second of the name, occurs in 1248." He is frequently mentioned in the Battle Abbey Grants and Feofments, and must have been far advanced in years when he died.

HENRY DE AYLESFORD was invested with the temporalities of the Monastery, as Abbot, by letters patent, of King Edward the First, May 28, 1281. He died, according to Willis, in 1297.

JOHN DE THANET, or DE TANETO, was next elected Abbot. The temporalities were restored to him, January 30, 1298. Among these collections, is a Grant by him, dated 1307, in which year, according to Willis, he resigned.

JOHN DE WHATLINTON, received Edward the Second's assent to his election, March 10, 1308. He died in 1311.

JOHN DE NORTHBURNE was elected Abbot by royal assent, May 25, 1311. There is a Grant of his among these collections, dated 1312. Upon his resignation, in 1318,

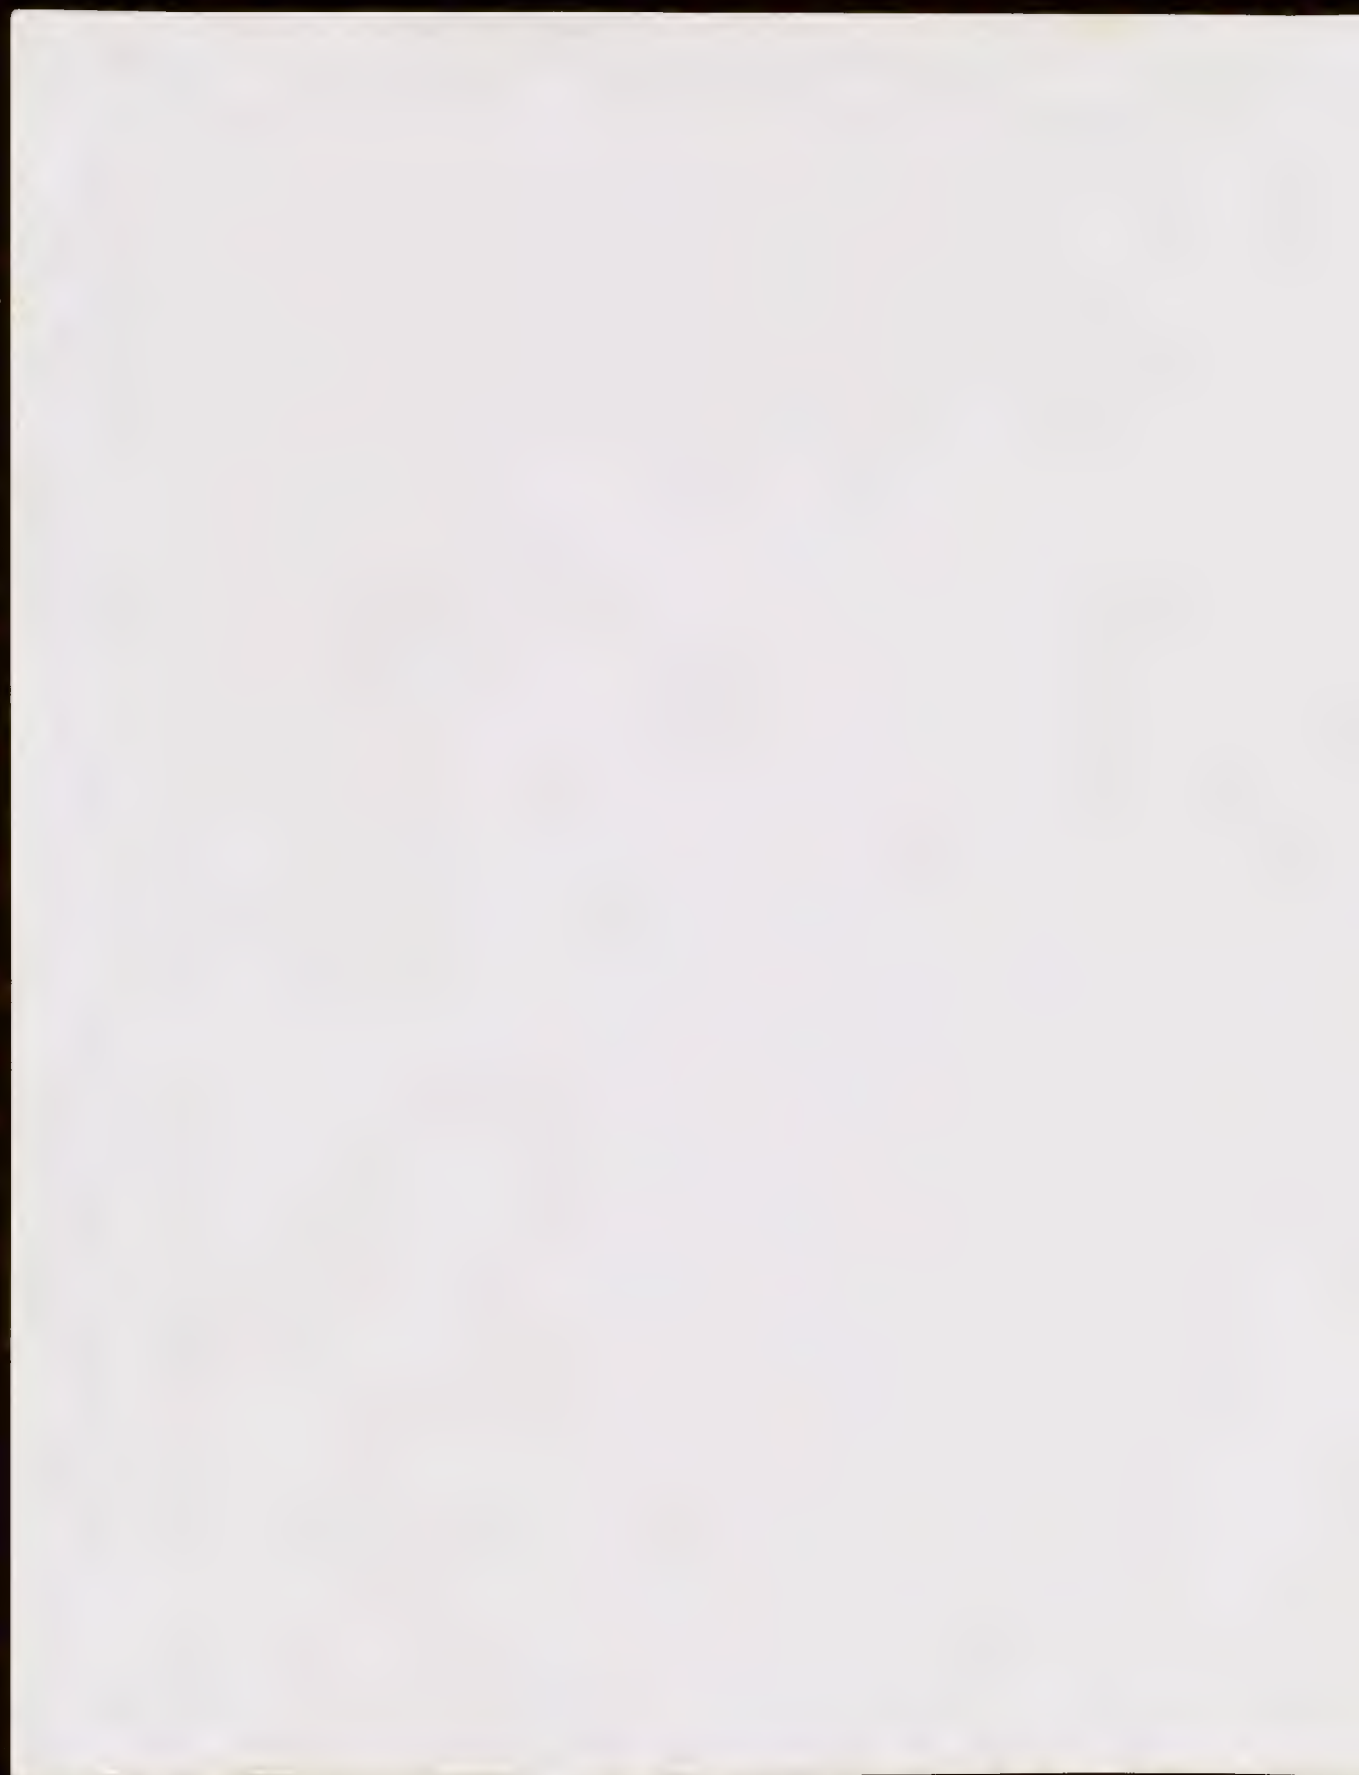

JOHN DE PEVENESE was elected and invested with the temporalities, May 6, in that year. The Harl. Manuscript, 6958, p. 267, calls him ROGER DE PEVENO. His death was notified to the King, Jan. 31, 1324, when

ALLAN DE KETLYNG was elected Abbot, to whom the temporalities were restored March 28, 1324. Willis calls him John de Kelling, and adds, "when he died I know not, but the next Abbot I meet with is Richard de Bello, who was elected in 1350. I presume he was the immediate successor of Kelling, because no other Abbot occurs between them on the Patent Rolls." That writer was wrong in describing him as Richard de Bello; upon the death of Allan,

ROBERT DE BELLO was elected Abbot, and the temporalities were restored to him March 23, 1351. In the Cartulary, is a bull of Pope Innocent the Sixth's, dated June 9, 1355, commanding John Jose, Prior of Brecon,* to conduct himself conformably to the accustomed rules of submission to the Abbot of the Monastery of S. Martin in Battle, who was wont time out of mind to visit the said Priory every three years, but which visitation, John the said Prior had resisted. The bull was granted on the complaint of this Robert, Abbot of the Monastery of Battle, who, according to Willis, under the appellation of Richard, died in 1364.

HAMO DE OFFYNTON, received benediction as Abbot from Archbishop Islip, Jan. 29, 1364; as appears by his Register. In 1375, he was appointed Visitor of the Monasteries of the Benedictine Order in the dioceses of Canterbury and Rochester; and in 1377, with great bravery and courage, defended Winchelsea against the French. Walsingham, in his Hist.

* The Priors of S. Nicholas in Exeter, and Brecknock in Wales, were cells to Battle Abbey. The name of John Jose was not known to the editors of Dugdale, in the list of the Priors of Brecon, vol. iii. p. 263. There being a lapse with them from 3128 to 1411.

Angl. edit. 1574, p. 198, particularises his conduct on that memorable occasion. Willis erroneously places this exploit to the year 1381.

JOHN CRANE was elected Abbot, by royal assent, March 20, 1383, and had the temporalities of the Monastery restored to him on May 1, following. Neither Willis nor Stevens, in their additions to Dugdale, mention this Abbot, upon whose death

JOHN LEDBURY or LYDBURY was elected. He received the temporalities, March 1, 1398. Willis places his decease in 1404.

WILLIAM MERSCH obtained the royal assent as Abbot, Jan. 16, 1405, and had the temporalities restored on the first of the following month. He is mentioned in several Feofments from 1404 to 1415, as WILLIAM MERESHAM, and WILLIAM DE MERESHAM. He died early in 1417, in which year,

THOMAS LODELOW, or LUDLOWE, who had been Prior of the Monastery, was elected his successor. The appointment received the assent on May 11, and he was invested with the Temporalities May 30, 1417. Upon Ludlow's resignation, he was succeeded by

WILLIAM WALLER, to whose election the royal assent was given, June 20, 1435, and the Temporalities restored on July 1, following. He died at the close of 1436: on the Monday preceding the Annunciation of the Virgin, 1437,

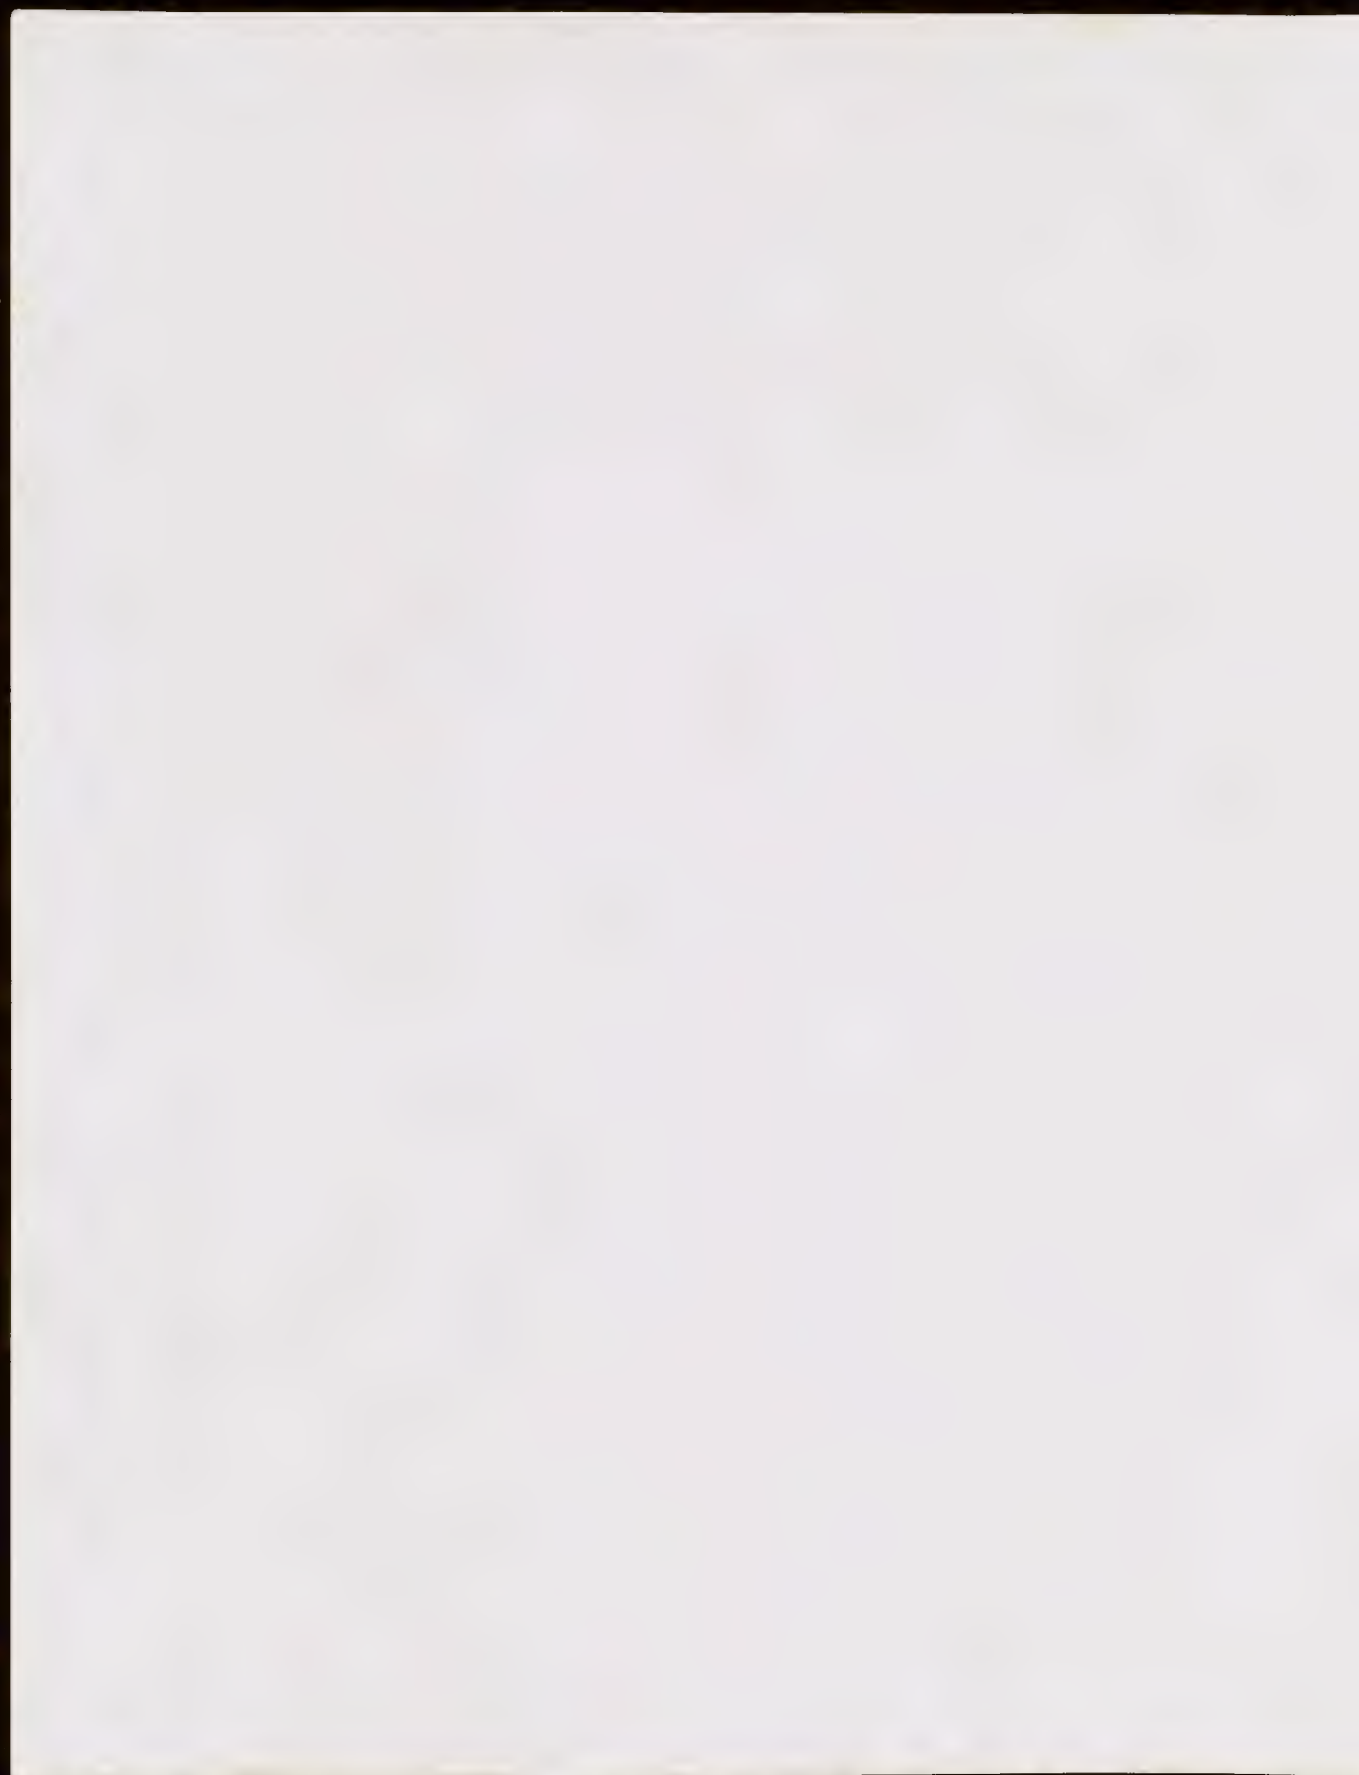

RICHARD DERTMOUTHE, or DARTMOUTH, elected Abbot, on the Monday preceding S. Philip and S. James' day, 1437; and the royal assent was obtained May 3d following, and the Temporalities restored on the 15th of the same month. He is last mentioned in a Feofment of the year 1461.

JOHN NUTON,* or NEWTON, was elected Abbot in 1463; the temporalities were restored to him by patent on June 14. He is mentioned in Feofments in 1463. Newton died in 1490.

RICHARD TOBY, or TOVY,† was, according to Willis, confirmed in the Abbacy Feb. 17, 1490[-91], and received the Temporalities March 8, following. He died Aug. 20, 1503.

* On a fly-leaf, at the commencement of the Chartulary, is an autograph of this Abbot, acknowledging the receipt of twenty shillings from William Knight, Master of the Hospital of S. Bartholomew, in Smithfield, in the suburbs of London, as heriots upon the decease of John Needham and John Wakeryng, two Masters of the said Hospital; for lands and tenement, called Dunton, in the parish of Dunton, Essex; held of the said Abbot, and of his Manor of Horton. Dated Jan. 4, [1470-71] A°. rr. Henrici Sexte xlix°, et readepcioni, suæ regiæ potestatis anno primo.

† An autograph acknowledgement of this Abbot, is extant, on a fly-leaf of the Chartulary, on receiving twenty shillings of Thomas Crewkes, Master of the Hospital of S. Bartholomew, in Smithfield; accruing to the said Abbot, for the lands and tenement of Dunton, ut supra, after the decease of William Knight, and John Barton, Masters of the said Hospital; dated May 2, 1492.

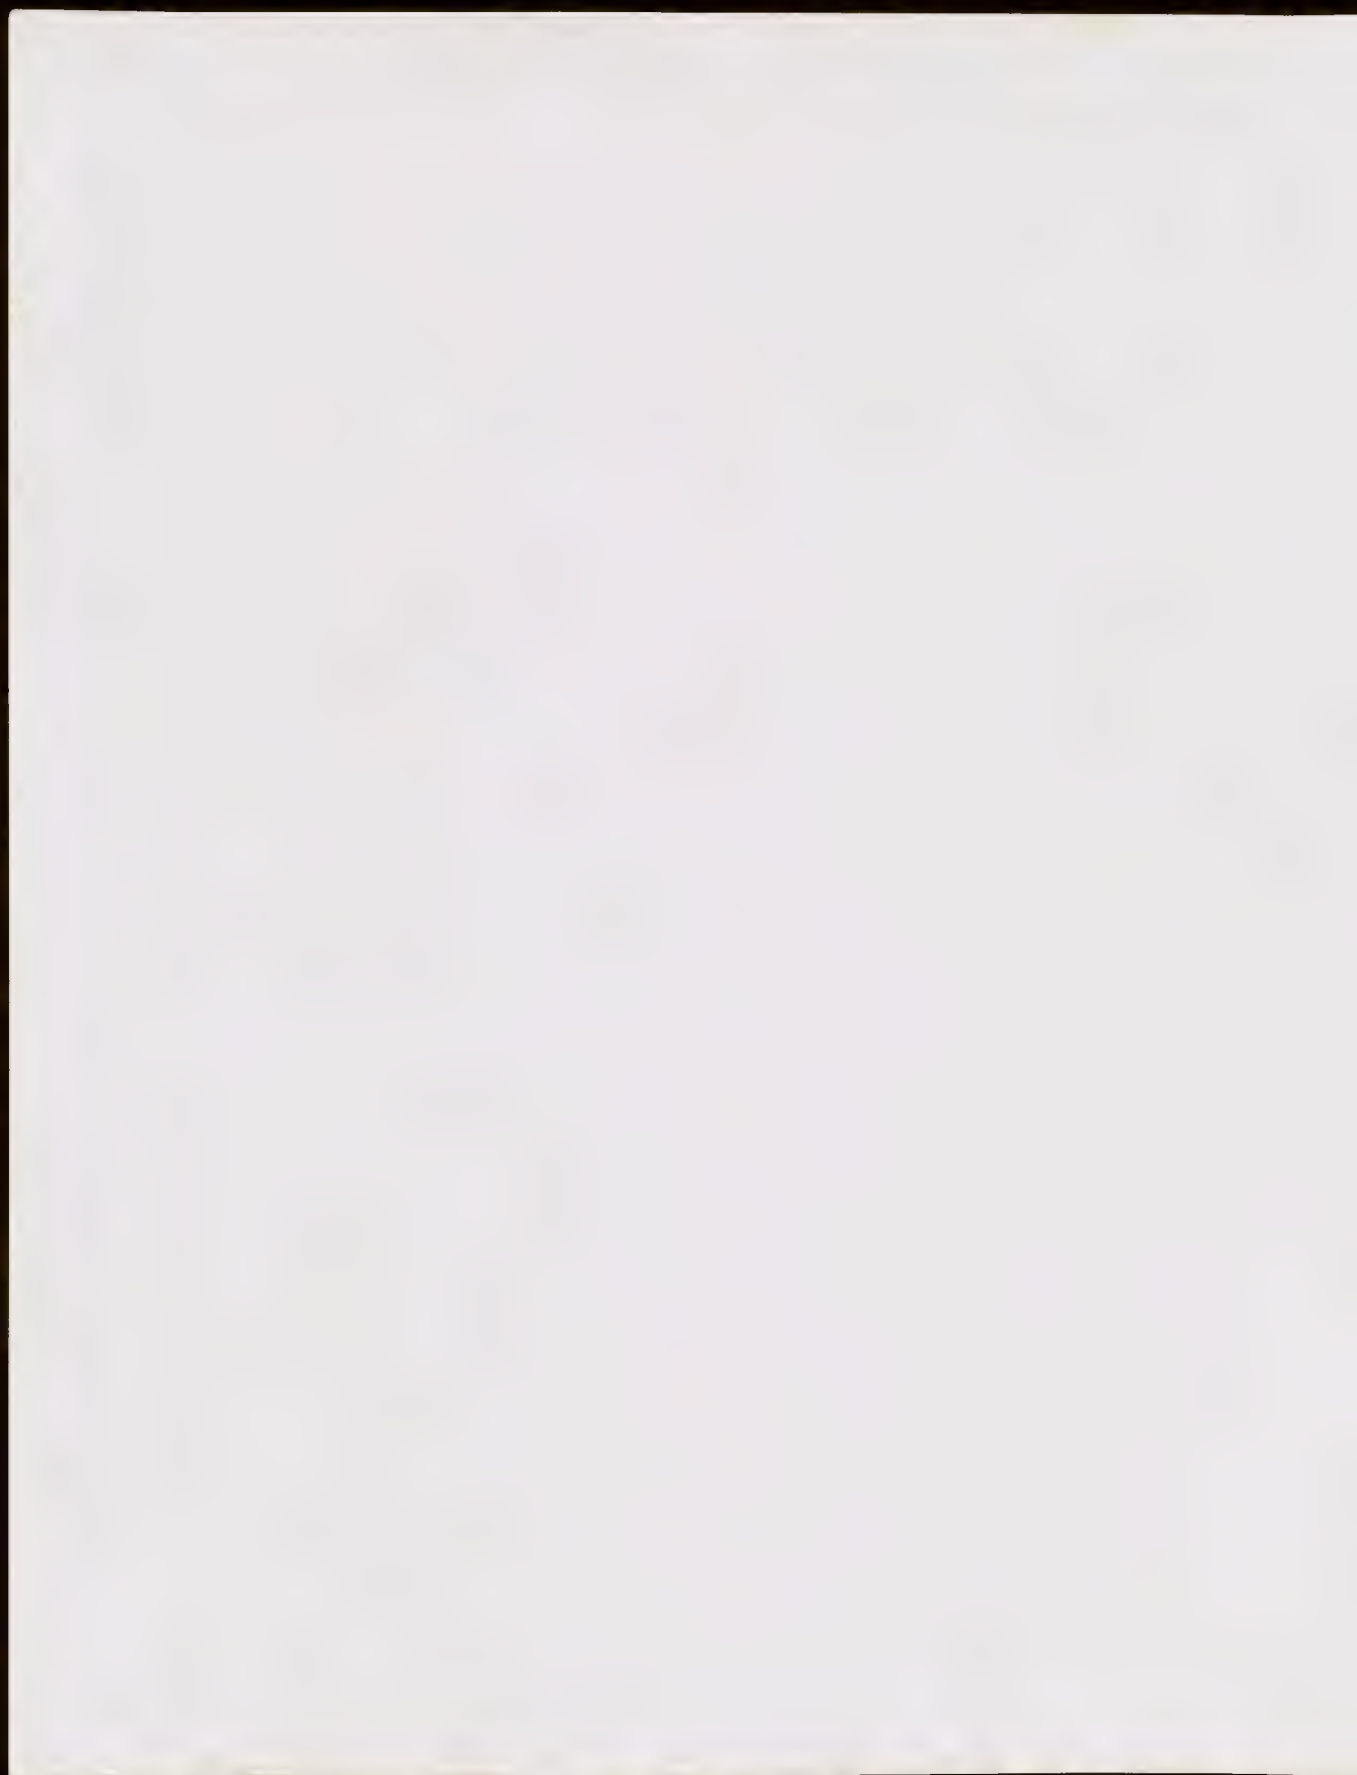

WILLIAM WESTFIELD, made Prior of the Cell of Brecknock, May 18, 1499, was elected Abbot Sept. 25, 1503; and the Temporalities were granted to him July 3, 1504. The editors of Dugdale, vol. iii. p. 262, who quote Cole's MS. in Museo, vol. xxviii., place his transfer from Brecon to the year 1502.

LAURENCE CAMPYON, or CHAMPION, received the Temporalities as Abbot, Dec. 8, 1508. The Roll of the Abbey expences rendered at Michaelmas 1509, contains the disbursements at the burial of the last Abbot, William Westfield; with the charges incident on the consecration and other formalities attendant upon Campion's assumption of that dignity. Campion is mentioned in a Feofment so late as June 1526. Willis expresses his ignorance how long he continued Abbot, but adds, that he had good reason to conclude his successor to have been

JOHN HAMOND, whom he found noticed as Abbot in 1533. Tanner, who is followed by the editors of Dugdale, conjectured that he was elected in 1529; because, that, on the Thursday after the feast of S. Laurence in that year, a proxy from the Prior of Brecknock was present in the Chapter-House in Battle, to elect a new Abbot: if so, it was not John Hamond, for his rolls, as Sacristan of the Monastery, dated so late as 1531, are part of these Collections. The editors of that grand national work, the Monasticon, are therefore in error, in the assertion that "John Hamond, the last Abbot, was elected in 1529." Abbot Hamond surrendered his Monastery to the King, May 27, 1538.

Browne Willis says, speaking of the Founder's Privileges, and the suppression of this Benedictine Monastery, "All which privileges coming with the Abbey itself into the hands of King Henry the Eighth, at the dissolution, he soon after, as I was informed when at the place, bestowed the scite of the church, with several of the lands, upon one Gilmer, who for lucre of the lead, timber, &c., in a little time pulled it down, and sold the materials; which sacrilegious act thrived not, for it was soon after sold to Sir Anthony Browne. The posterity of this Gilmer do yet live in this place, in a mean capacity." A very ridiculous story, for the letter to Cromwell, of Sir John Gage, of Firle, in Sussex, and Richard Layton, the King's Commissioners, giving an account of the surrender and dissolution of Battle Abbey, dated May 27, [1538], is extant among the Cottonian Manuscripts; and on Aug. 15 following,* a grant, under the king's sign manual, conferred the house and scite of the late Monastery of Battle, in co. Sussex, on Sir Anthony Browne, his heirs and assigns for ever. Sir Anthony Browne was the son-in-law of Sir John Gage; he married his daughter Alice.

* The editors of Dugdale, by an oversight, vol. iii. p. 266, say, "King Henry the Eighth granted the site of Battle Abbey, with the Manor, by letters patent, dated August 15th, in the 31st year of his reign, A.D. 1539, to Sir Anthony Browne." This is erroneous; the letters patent of that grant is printed by them, subsequently, at p. 254, and correctly given under the date of the 30th of that monarch.

Gough, in his additions to Camden, adopts from Willis, the vague story of Sir Anthony Browne's purchase from a previous possessor; and has been followed by the editors of Dugdale, who state it thus: "Gough says, Sir Anthony Browne bought the scite of a previous grantee. What his son, the first Lord Montague, built here, he adds, is now the most ruinous part of the Abbey; being only the shell of a suite of rooms at the south end, with two towers at the east end, which were standing, when Buck's view was taken in 1737, but are now [1789] down."

In a recess of the chancel, in the parish church of Battle, which stands just without the Abbey wall, is a monument of Sir Anthony Browne.

To the Monks, until the period of the suppression, was entrusted the Conqueror's sword, and his coronation robe, as also the roll of the Normans who came over with him. It was seen in the reign of Henry the Eighth, by Leland, in the first volume of whose Collectanea it is printed; but, as Dugdale observes, all the copies are false, by the frauds of the Monks, who enrolled in it any benefactors or eminent persons. Gough intimates, "It seems to have been lost at the suppression." The possibility is, that Sir Anthony, upon building Cowdray, carried it thither, with the Conqueror's sword, and other reliques, which he is known to have done. Battle Abbey, under the Montagues, suffered at different times partial demolition. The ruins yet bear ample testimony of its former magnificence, and the carved roof, which, according to Gough, was of Irish oak, of the refectory or Abbey-hall, above fifty paces long, was carried to Cowdray, which mansion, with its invaluable remains of the eighth Harry's reign, was, within the last fifty years, wholly destroyed by fire, and all chance of its being in the possession of the Montague's lost.

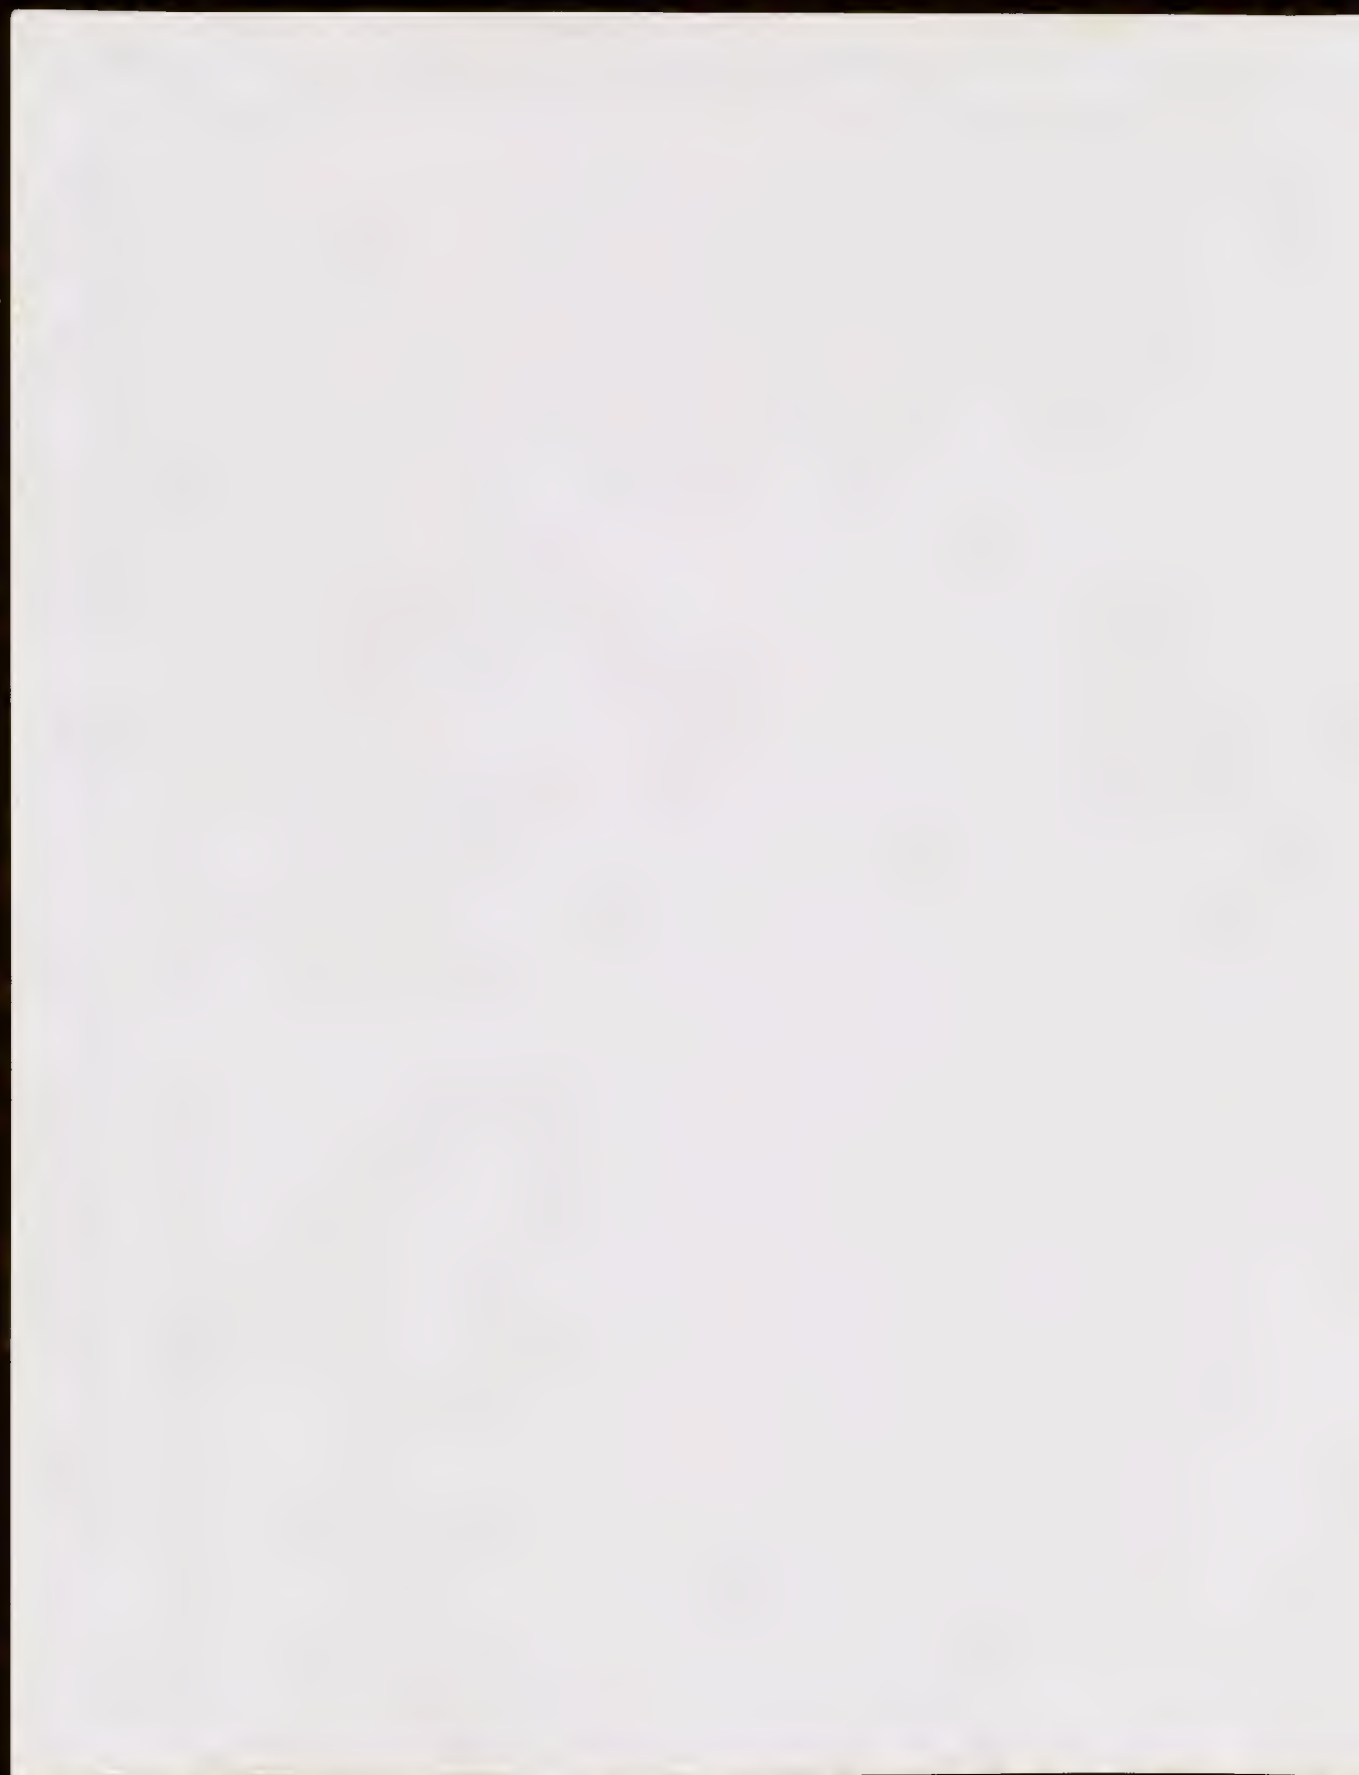

CATALOGUE
CHARTERS, GRANTS, AND IMMUNITIES
OF
BATTLE ABBEY, SUSSEX,
FOUNDED BY
WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR.
IN COMMEMORATION OF THE BATTLE OF HASTINGS,
AND
THE CONQUEST OF ENGLAND.

CARTULARY of the Charters, Grants, and Privileges to the Monastery of S. Martin, in Battle, from the foundation by William the Conqueror, to the time of Henry the Third; with the several Bulls and Indulgences of the Popes, Confirmations of the Archbishops of Canterbury; Grants of Lands by the Benefactors of this Fraternity, &c., on parchment, folio.

The Charters embodied in this volume comprise thirteen of the Founder, William the First; nine of his son, William Rufus; twenty-eight of Henry the First; two of Stephen; eight of Henry the Second; one of Richard the First; two of John, and two of Henry the Third; followed by one of Richard, Earl of Poitou and Cornwall, of the year 1244.

The date of the first Charter is nearly certified, from circumstances connected with the testes or witnesses, among whom are, Lanfranc, Archbishop of Canterbury, and Maurice, Bishop of London and Lord Chancellor; the latter was not elected to that see till 1086, and Lanfranc died in 1089. Among the Nobles were the famous Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester; William, Earl of Warwick; and several others. Sir N. H. Nicolas, in his Synopsis of the Peerage, says, the first Earl was "Henry de Newburgh, younger son of Roger de Bellomont, Earl of Mellent, in Normandy, created Earl of Warwick, by William the Conqueror, ob. 1123." As this William must have preceded the above Henry of Newburgh,* or the name Henry is given erroneously for William; the fact of this variation of name occurring even in the first Charter, may be advanced in advocacy of the truth of the assertion of the great utility the thousands of Testators names to these Charters must necessarily be to the genealogist, as authorities for the compilation of the pedigrees of the nobility and principal families of the olden times.

* Baron Maseres names also Henry, in his account of Roger de Beaumont and his family, in the note, p. 160, upon William of Poitiers, Gesta Guillelmi Ducis Normannorum et Regis Anglorum, taken from William of Jumiege's History of the Normans.

In this Chartulary the Grants will be found to have reference to the Manors belonging to Battle Abbey, namely, Alsiston, Teleton, Alurichest, and Blechyngton; Apeldreham, Anasti, Confirmatione Comites et Comitesses Augi; Bello Villa et Leuga, Terra Basoc, Bodherst, Wycham, Newenham and Echenham, Bodyham, Berherst, Bernehorne, Brychwalton, Bromham, Dengemereis, Hoton, Iltonsbath, Iklesham, Ixning, East Kyngesuode, West Kyngesuode, Lymenesfeld, Cestede, London, Rette, Sedlescumbe, La Snape, Schorham, Watlynton, Wycham, Wy, Tone, Fannescumbe, Cumbe, Bocholt, Wechyndenn, Wyk, &c.

The entries by subsequent Abbots, which are continued till the period of the surrender of the Monastery to King Henry the Eighth, are very copious, and contain record of matters, of which there are no other documents extant.

On the fly-leaf is a memorandum, temp. Q. Elizabeth—"Iste liber attinet Anthonie Browne, Vic. Mountague." A most copious, curious, and interesting record, furnishing the items of the disbursements, distributions, and rewards, on the day of sepulture of William Westfelde, the late Abbot; as also the expenses and charges attendant on the election, creation, confirmation, and consecration of Laurence, the new Abbot. Many of the entries arrest the cursory glance, and exhibit much that is valuable to the antiquary, and the enquirer into past usages and manners, particularly as respects monastical institutions. Amid numerous other outlays, eleemosinary or otherwise, the charge of making of the grave, which was to entomb all that remained of the representative of abbatial dignity and reverence, was only viij*d*. Many of the items of the Abbot Laurence are also deserving of observation:—"for a printed book, bought at London, viij*d*;" and, what could hardly be expected, among his gifts and rewards is mentioned, "in reward, given to the players of my lord the King, vjs. viij*d*;" and, "in reward, given to two players of my lord the Earl of Arundel, x*d*."

Abbey, after the Dissolution of the Monasteries in England.*

Letter, name effaced by time, to SIR ANTHONY BROWNE's Steward, respecting the retaining the services of such roughlayers as he should send for employment to Battle, as he hears those sent by Mr. Bartlette are returned home to their own country. It appears that extensive repairs and alterations were made by Sir Anthony, which was done by some builder by contract; the writer urges the Steward, "that ye woll se them well handelyde in their wages, yf men feell no gayne by their labors and travell hytt were as goode that they werre gone for they woll worke none theire after. As I vnderstonde the worke ys takyn in greatt by one mann and he doweth gyve small wages by cause hys owne gayne shulde be the morre." The writer appears to have been one of the King's officers, as he says, as soon as their pay was done, he should send a substantial man as a morter-maker. Dated July 11, no year, but possibly 1539, as Sir Anthony had the grant for the House and Scite of the late Monastery of Battle, for himself and heirs, by Patent, Aug. 15, 1538, 30 Hen. VIII.

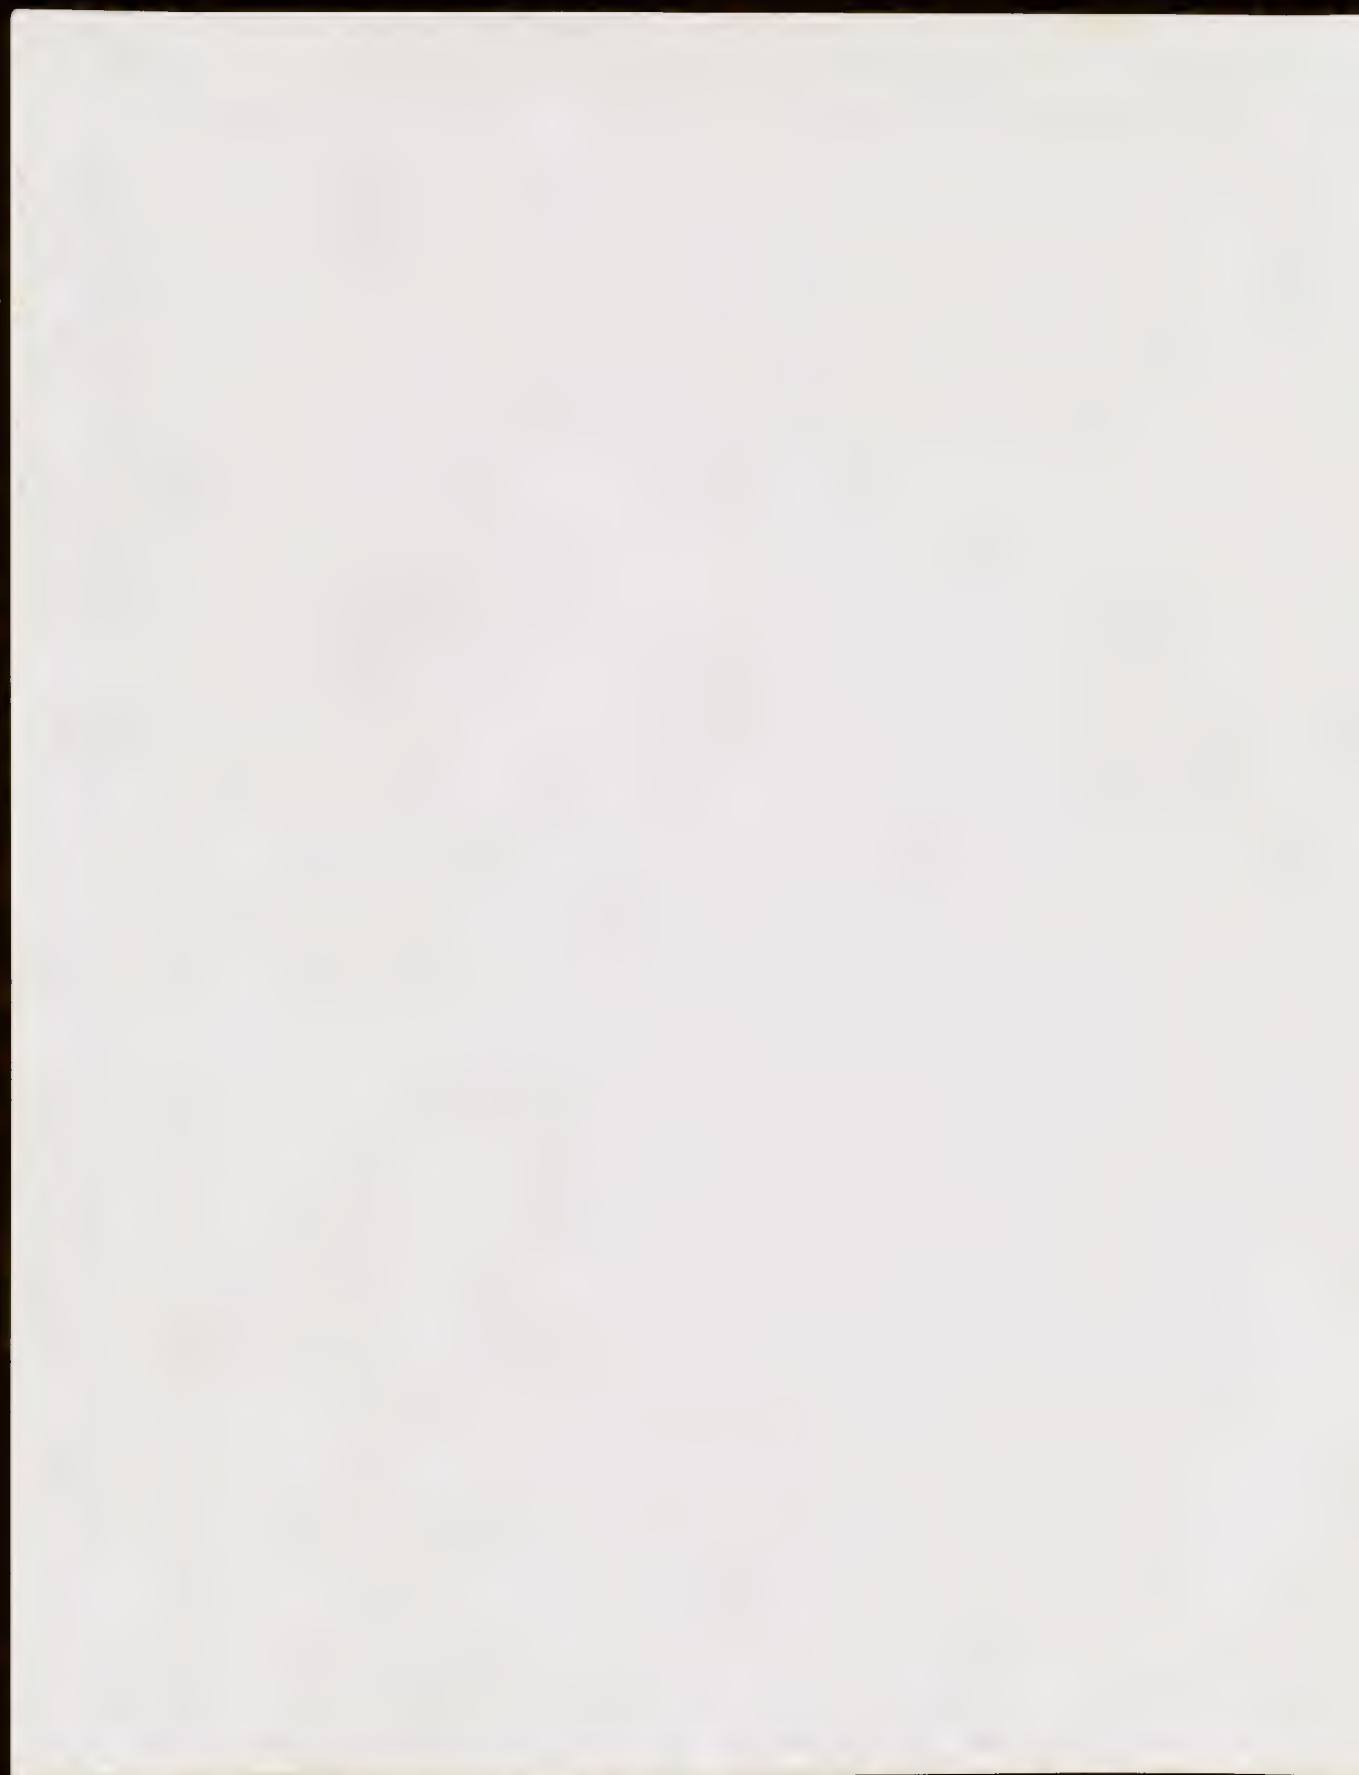

THOMAS ASSCHEBURNEHAM,* Autograph Letter to Master Parson of Cramonye, Chaplain of the Honorable Sir Anthony Browne, Knight,† thanking him for some "pallers" the Parson let him

* This Thomas Ashburnham was the son of Thomas Ashburnham, seated at Gesteling in Sussex, on whom the said Thomas, by his will dated April 12, 1523, entailed all his estates in Kent and Sussex. He mentions Elizabeth his wife, mother of this Thomas, and Ellen and Anne his daughters; but, in default of issue, made William Ashburnham, of Ashburnham, Esq., son of John Ashburnham, his brother, his heir.

† Sir ANTHONY BROWNE, Master of the Horse to King Henry the Eighth, and one of the chief favourites of that monarch, died May 6, 1548, being then Master of the Horse to King Edward the Sixth. He was buried at Battle, leaving issue by Alice his wife, da. of Sir John Gage, Knt., four sons, of whom Anthony, the eldest, was his heir, and three daughters, Mary, marr. to John Grey, second son to Thomas, Marquis of Dorset; Mabel to Gerald, Earl of Kildare; and Lucy to Thomas Roper, of Eltham, in Kent, Esq., ancestor of the Lord Teynham subsequently noticed.

ANTHONY, the son, was one of the forty Knights created at the Coronation of King Edward the Sixth; and for the more honourable reception of Philip of Spain, then about to be married to Mary the First, was appointed, on April 8, 1554, Master of the Horse to that King; and on Sept. 2 following, by letters patent, advanced to the dignity of Viscount Montagu, which title he chose, by reason that the Lady Lucy, his grandmother, was one of the daughters and co-heirs to John Nevil, Marquis Montagu; and was then deputed, by order of Parliament, together with Thomas Thurlby, Bishop of Ely, to the Pope, to render the submission of these realms to an accordance and union with the Church of Rome, and to the obedience of that see. He was afterwards of the Queen's Privy Council, and consulted in most affairs during her turbulent and mischievous reign.

The accession of Elizabeth diffused a gleam of brightness more consonant to the feelings of the nation; and the Viscount, known as a staunch Romanist, was omitted in the selection of the members of the Privy Council. He, in fact, have; and understanding that Sir Anthony, "My master and yours, hathe geven me a peace of a bukke out of Battle," proffers to fetch it, "for as the case nowe requyers, it could never come better;" subscribes himself, "Your owne to his letell powyr." Master Parson of Cramonye, thus addressed, was, according to the custom of the time, the person hereafter noticed as Sir Richard Ambrose.

Roll of the High Court holden for the Manor of Battle, 1542.

KING HENRY THE EIGHTH's Award and Determination between Sir Roger Lewkenore, Knight, and Dame Elizabeth his wife, on the one part, and Sir William Barantyne, Knight, and Dame Jane Pole, widow, and others, concerning the said Sir Roger's Lande; having the GREAT SEAL OF ENGLAND attached, and the Autographs of King Henry the Eighth; Sir Robert Southwell, Master of the Rolls; William Whorwood; and Sir John Baker, Knight. Dated April 24, 1542.

Sir Roger Lewkenor was Sheriff of Sussex in 1532; the Lewkenors served that office in the same county eight several times.

The award states the Lady Jane Pole to be the widow of Sir Arthur Pole, Knight, deceased, one of the daughters of the said Sir Roger Lewkenor; and professes to determine the various disputes relative to the possessions of the said Roger, in the counties of Sussex, Middlesex, Oxford, Northampton, Leicester, Huntingdon, and elsewhere. The Lordships and Manors named are Bodiham, Camois court, Warmyngore, Dalyngrave, Iforde, and land in Roghey, called the Old Parke, &c. in Sussex. A copious and most important document to the County Historian.

in the second year of her reign, on the grand debate in Parliament for the annulling of the Pope's supremacy and restoring it to the Crown of England and its dependencies, was the only Peer, who, with the Earl of Shrewsbury, as Camden expresses it, voted from a sentiment of zeal and honour against that abolition.

Notwithstanding his devotion to the Romish faith, his prudence and wisdom evinced him a loyal and dutiful subject, and he was considered, in the ensuing year, as the most acceptable person to be sent as ambassador from England to Philip the Second of Spain, to satisfy him of the just causes the Queen had to send an armed force into Scotland, and to represent that the practices of the Guises might be of as dangerous consequences to his provinces in the Netherlands, as well as in Spain, as they were then, in effect, to England.

The Viscount was one of the Peers who presided on the trial of Mary Queen of Scots, the victim of the conspiracies of the Guises; and in that, as in all other measures, displayed his attachment to the government; services which endeared him to Elizabeth, who paid him a visit some short time before his death, which took place at Horsley, in Surrey, Oct. 19, 1592. He was buried at Coudray, in Sussex.

A volume thus designated, contains the Accounts of some Iron Master, and exhibits his expenditure in carrying on an extensive concern, during that year. Sums paid for "carying of lodes of Sand from Pannyngrydge unto my forge at Robertsbridge, at xvjd. the lode."

Sums paid Mr. Chancellor, for the farm of his Woods at Pannyngrige; sums paid unto the Parson of Penherst, for the farm of the Phurner [Furnace]-pond† there; as also for the Tythe of the Phurner there, &c.

* A coard of wood, in Sussex, is in measure fourteen feet long, three feet wide, and three feet two inches high; the two inches in height being allowed for shrinking or settling.

† Sussex has long been famous for its mines and manufacture of iron, and is said to have many pools of water, formed solely with the intention of driving the hammer-mills, constructed at various periods. The mention of Robertsbridge points out the source whence this volume came amongst the Battle Abbey Papers. The Manor of Robertsbridge was possessed, in the time of Elizabeth, by Sir Henry Sidney, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The famous Sir Philip Sidney, his son, died seized of it, 28th of her reign: his da. and heiress, Elizabeth, married Roger, Earl of Rutland. The manor was subsequently possessed by the Earls of Leicester, until 1720, when John, Earl of Leicester, sold it to John Sambroke, Esq. of whom, in 1725, Sir Thomas Webster purchased it. Rouse quotes a document of the year 1609, which described the Manor-house, sometime called Elam, in the parish of Salehurst, as then having various buildings for the steel-makers, with eight steel forges, mill-house; the great East-gate employed as a store house for iron, &c.

At the end it is stated the whole of the disbursements contained in this book amount to 1945*l.* 10*s.*, a very large sum, when it is remembered that his lordship, as a recusant, had paid forfeit to the Commonwealth authorities of two-thirds of his estate.

The orthography of these accounts is none of the best, and the misspelling is not retained in the following extracts. The volume commences with the extraordinary disbursements in going to Poynings, and at Poyning during the time of my lord's being there.

To a Link-bóy for lighting my Lady, 2*d.* 6th. Paid the Chair-man for carrying my Lady to my Lady Sheldon's ball, 2*s.* There are frequent entries of payment to Chair-men till three and four in the morning. 10th. Paid the Chair-men for carrying my Lord and my Lady to Sir John Thimblebe's [i. e. Thimbelby]'s supper, and waiting until 6 o'clock in the morning for my Lady. 20th. Given to one Mr. Huddleston, by my Lord's order, 10*s.* This was Father Huddleston, the Jesuit; James, Duke of York, introduced him in the dying moments of Charles the Second; and from him the king received the Viaticum, confessing himself to Huddleston, with his last breath, that he died a Catholic.

June 25. Paid Rose, the Coachman, for carrying my Lady to Tart-Hall, [the Earl of Arundel's, near Tuthill Fields,] &c. 7*s.* July 2. Paid Rowland Rayler, for three couples and a dog, 7*l.* 14*s.* For two bushels of Roses, 10*d.* There are a vast number of such entries; his Lordship's pursuits led him to estimate running-horses and hunting-dogs; and her Ladyship to balls and suppers. The present is a volume amply supplying most interesting and valuable notices of the domestic œconomy of such a nobleman at this period.

Various Accounts of the Steward of Battle, Receipts of the Rental, Produce of Fell'd Timber in Brand's Wood; Stone, Lead, &c., from the Old Kitchen,* Disbursements on the Lands in his Lord-

* Rouse supposed that an interior, under the refectory in Battle Abbey, see his thirty-eighth plate, was the kitchen of the Monastery, a conjecture which arose doubtless from the absence of any part of the building now retaining any similitude to such a place, suitable for so large an establishment; but these accounts show, that the monastical kitchen was rased to the ground in October 1685, and the stone, lead, and timber, sold to the tenantry. The receipts of the years 1686, 1687, and 1688, contain frequent notices of the produce by the sale of materials "from the old kitchen." The stone was sold at four and five shillings the cart-load, and the lead at twelve shillings and sixpence the hundred weight. Goodman Griffin paid, Feb. 27, 1685-6, in part of money due for lead, ten pounds; and again, May 15, twenty pounds. The accounts for 1686 debit other persons for forty hundred weight, and large quantities to other persons in the two following years, so that that portion of the Abbey must have been of very considerable extent.

Browne Willis, while describing Battle, observes, "Though this Abbey be demolished, yet the magnificence of it appears by what remains of the offices, and by the largeness of the hall, kitchen, and gatehouse. As to the kitchen, it was so large as to contain five fire-places, and it was arched at top." He was evidently not aware that the old Abbey kitchen was pulled down in 1685; and it is sufficiently clear that he is describing the same part of the building, with the original purposes of which Rouse was either erroneously informed, or drew a false conjecture without a due consideration.

June 20, 1719.

In this Petition, p. 23, it is stated, "upon the fifteenth day of March last, [i. e., 1718-19,] the said Henry Whistler departed this life;" yet, in the Cause papers, under date of Feb. 23, 1770, the date of the decease of Henry Whistler is there mentioned as May 16, 1718. There is some confusion respecting these facts; the Will recited in the Petition notices its date as Aug. 26, 1718, 4 George the First; the year 1717 would be the true date, if the year of the King's reign is correct, although all mention of the Will retain the date of 1718. The Cause papers of Feb. 1770, mention the day of H. Whistler's death as May 15, 1718.

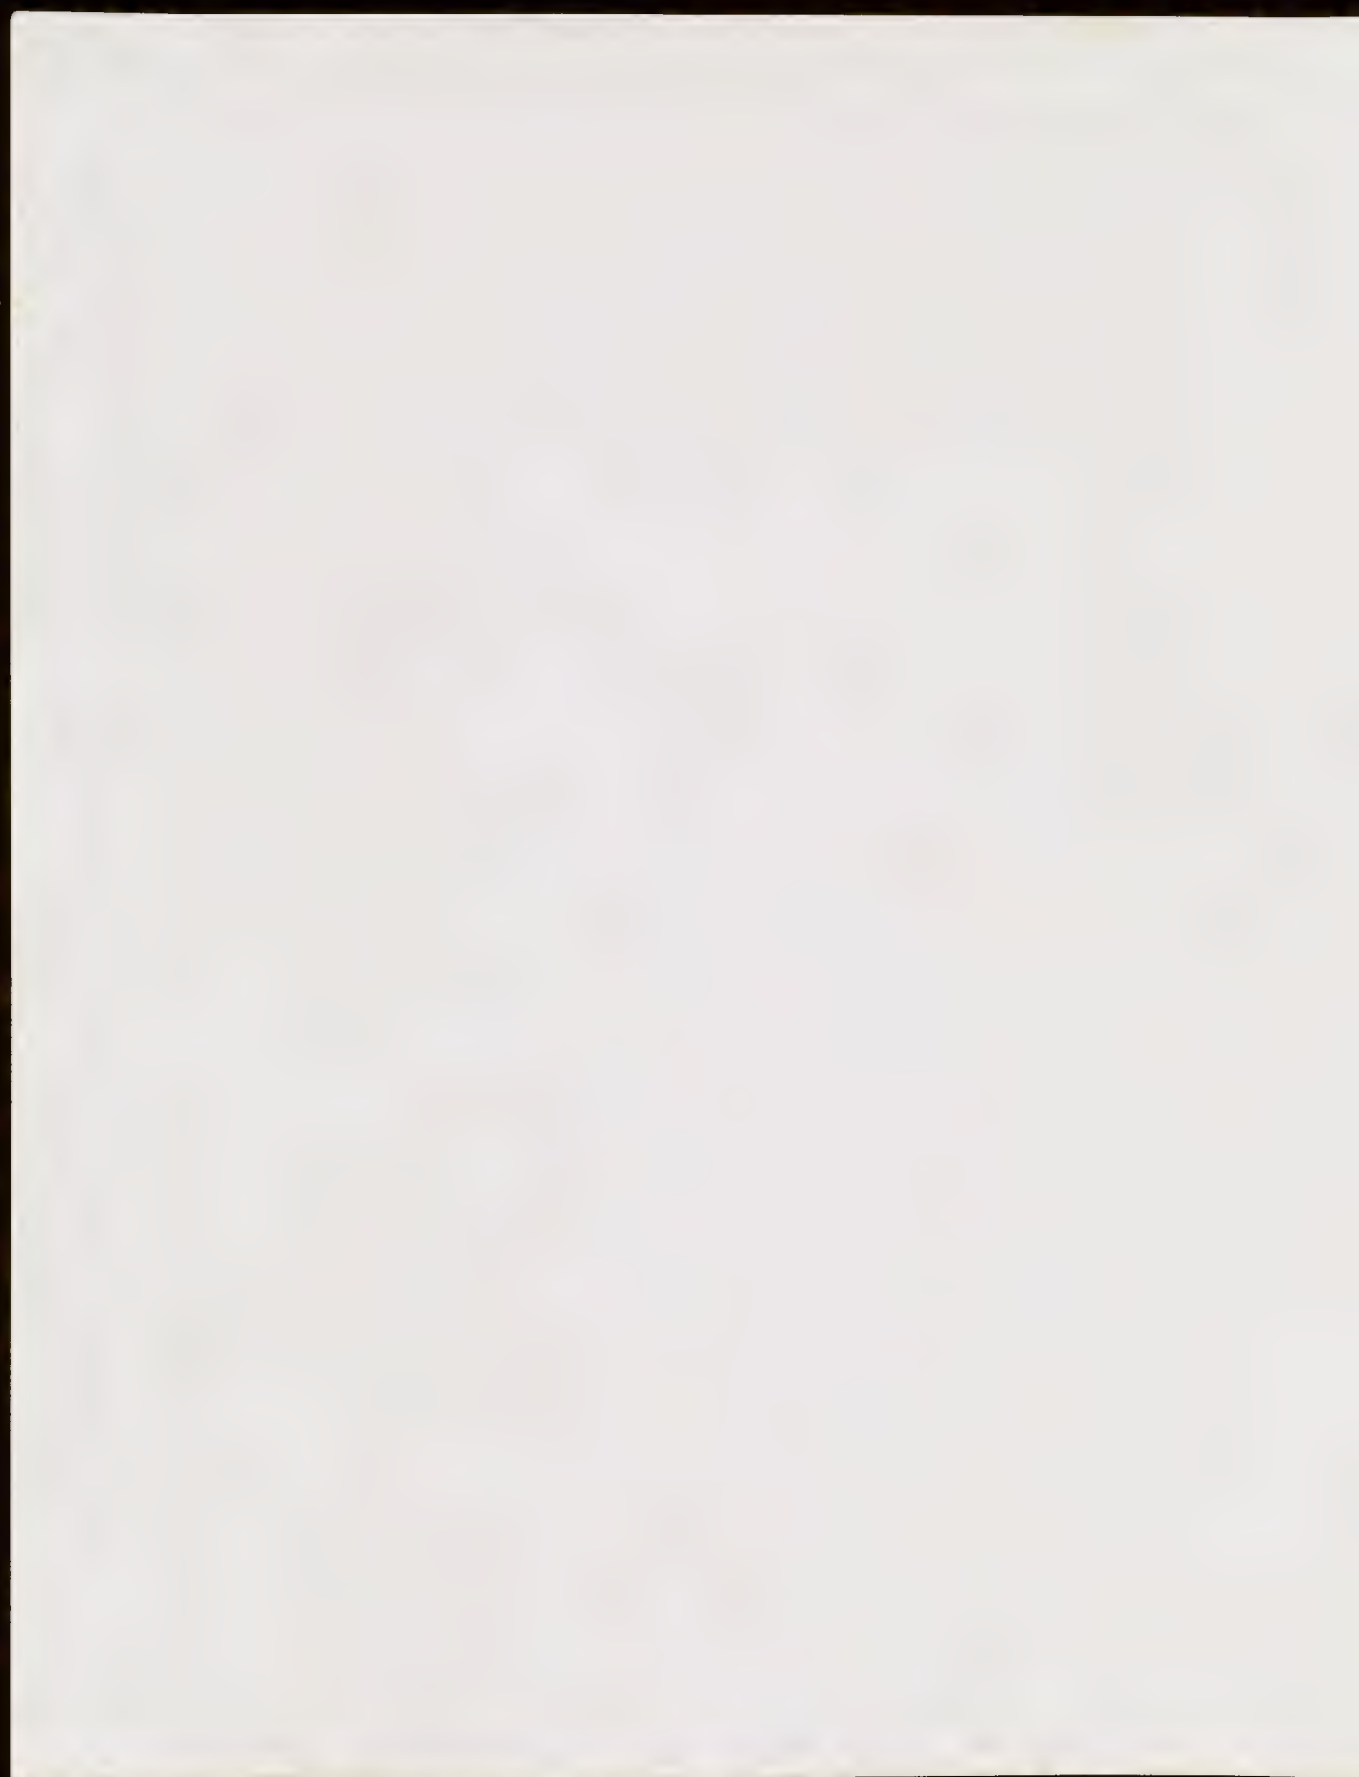

CHARLES HOWARD, Earl of Suffolk and Bindon, Lord Howard of Walden, &c., Lord Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the County of Essex, Commission to Sir Thomas Webster, Bart., constituting him his Deputy Lieutenant for that County, signed "SUFFOLK AND BINDON." With Seal. May 10, 1720.

HENRY O'BRIEN, Earl of Thomond, and Viscount Tadcaster, Lord Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the County of Essex, Commission to Sir Thomas Webster, Bart., to be his Deputy Lieutenant for that County, with the Earl's Autograph and Seal. July 12, 1722. The Earl, who is not mentioned in Debrett's Peerage, died in 1741, when the English title of Viscount Tadcaster, co. York, became extinct.

SIR THOMAS WEBSTER'S Account-Book of Receipts from his Rentals, &c., with his Disbursements, from Jan. 1723-4 to Dec. 1734. — Estimate of Wood felled. — Memoranda of Iron blowed in at Robertsbridge Furnace. — Fishings of the Ponds, with the quantities of Store Carp put into the Abbey-Stews, Bodiam Castle Moat, the Forge River at Robertsbridge, &c. — Charges of the Forge and River, &c., at Robertsbridge; WITH MEMORANDA, THE RESULTS OF EXPERIENCE, WHICH APPEAR TO BE HIGHLY VALUABLE. — Statements of Payments of Wages by Sir Thomas Webster, at his Foundry, &c., from Feb. 1728 to Dec. 1733.

A few extracts, at a mere glance, are here given from the disbursements— 1723-4, Jan. 14. Paid Mrs. Vanderbank, [wife of the Painter,] lengthening a set of tapestry hangings, 12*l.* Feb. 1. Given to build the Church at Derby, 5*l.* 5*s.* Lent Mr. Peter Soneman, [Artist,] per note, 21*l.*

1726, Feb. 1. Paid Mr. Kinsey for a whole-length picture from Mr. Murray, 5*l.* 5*s.* 16th. Paid Mr. Akers for bricks brought from Giddy-Hall, in my father's time, 7*l.* 5*s.* June 20. Paid Mr. Churcher for buckskin breeches, 5*l.*

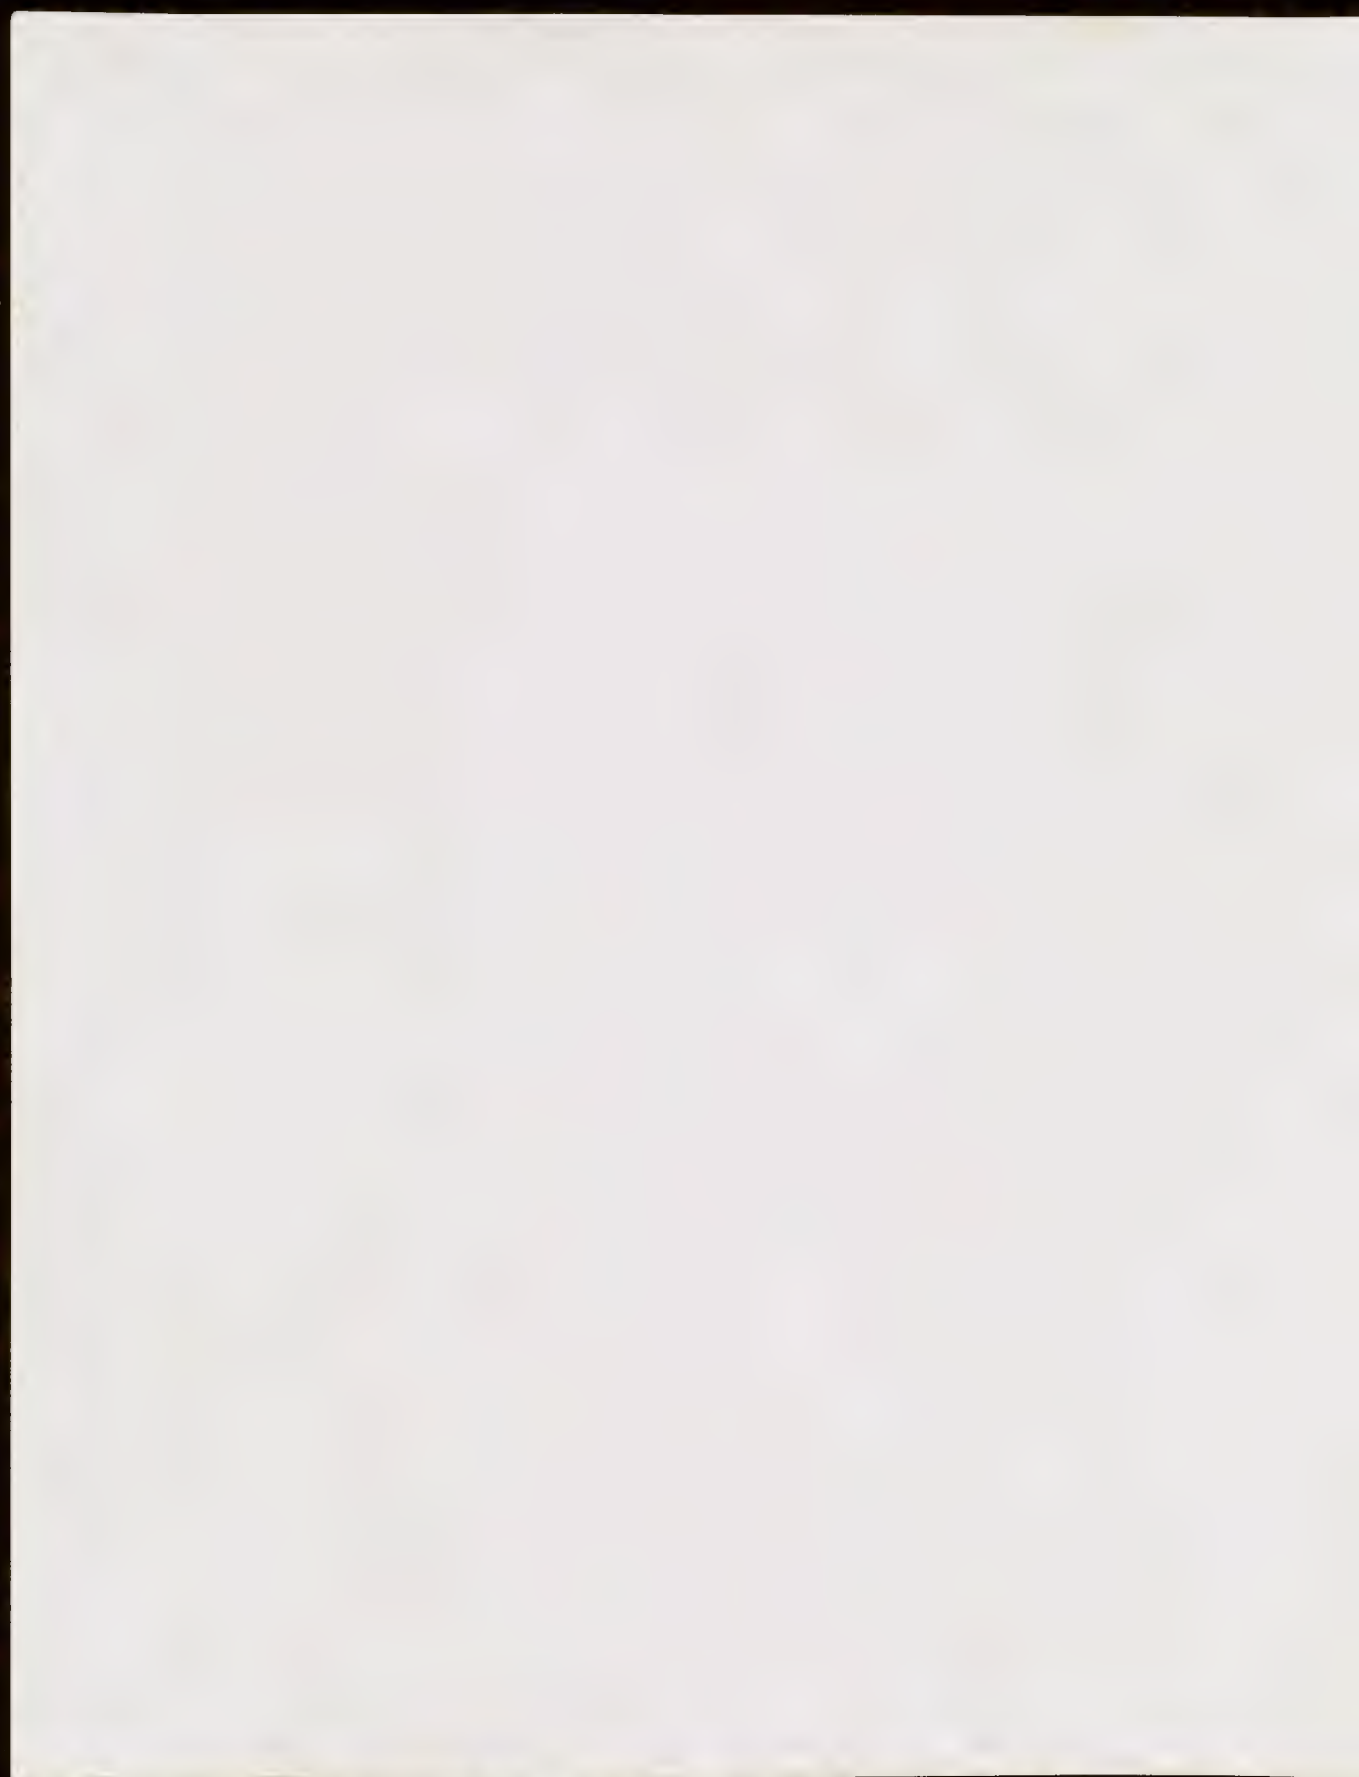

1729, April 11. Paid Mr. Tonson for a Rymer's Fœdera, 59*l.* 15*s.* Sir Thomas's payments to Gosling, Prevost, Du Noyer, and others, the principal booksellers of that day, are considerable. May 1. Paid for a picture recommended by Mr. Bonnell, 6*l.* 6*s.* These accounts show that Bonnell was one of the cognoscenti of his day, and that Sir Thomas relied on his judgment in the purchases of paintings. Like many of the sons of genius, he appears to have been necessitous; and under May 3, 1728, these pages record, "Given in charity to Mr. Bonnell, in prison, 1*l.* 1*s.*;" and again, "Given charity to Mr. Bonnell, 1*l.* 11*s.*"

1731, May 29. Paid Mr. Tull, husbandry tackle, 35*l.* 14*s.* Oct. 26. Again, 25*l.* 4*s.* Nov. 19. For a plough, 8*l.* 8*s.* These payments were to Jethro Tull, whose work on husbandry is still esteemed as of authority.

1734, May 15. Paid Nathaniel Buck for prints, &c., 4*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* Buck's Views have eternized the remembrance of this Artist and his brother. Nov. 21. Paid Pickering for snuff, in full, 6*l.* 6*s.* The payments to his tailors, shoemakers, and "haberdashers in hats," show Sir Thomas to have been economical in his costume, though he wore his velvet coats conformably with the fashion of his time; and his gold-lacemen's bills evince, that the Baronet could, and did, display a bedizened exterior at the Smyrna Coffee House, and elsewhere, among the gayest of the gay.

In reciting the Abstract of the Will of the said Henry Whistler, it is here dated Aug. 26, 1718, and noticed that he soon after died. Yet in other Documents, authorized by having been the instruments in various law proceedings; the Will is dated Aug. 26, 1716, and the death of the said Henry Whistler, as variously given—in some as on March 15, 1718 [19], and in others as on May 15, 1718. Exhibits that Sir Godfrey Webster, Knt., Citizen and Clothworker, of London, resided at Nelme, in the Parish of Hornchurch, in Essex, that his will was dated Jan. 12, 1719, and that he died Jan. 16, 1720; at which date Sir Thomas's children were Abigail, marr. to William Northey, Esq.; Mary, who died unmarried, Dec. 26, 1722; Jane, Whistler, who succeeded Sir Thomas; Elizabeth, and Godfrey, a minor, and under the age of twenty-one. The document is interesting, from the extraordinary fluctuations of the South-Sea stock which it affords: on Christmas-day, 1721, it rose a third, by which the 15,000 at once became 20,000. Jane and Elizabeth, in 1735, were, it appears, then unmarried.

Decree by the Lords Commissioners, in the Cause between SIR WHISTLER WEBSTER, Bart., Plaintiff, and GODFREY WEBSTER and others, by original Bill, and Bill of Reviver, Feb. 23, 1770, respecting the Validity of the Will of Lady Jane Webster, relict of Sir Thomas Webster, deceased. pp. 42, folio.

Mentions an Indenture, dated Jan. 26, 1727, which recited that Sir Edward Northey, Knt., Attorney-General, was then deceased; that of the South Sea and India Stocks, late belonging to Henry Whistler, deceased, there had been released 30,548*l.*; that Sir Thomas Webster had purchased the Robert's Bridge Estate, then of the annual value of 1,186*l.*, for 30,700*l.*, which, together with a great House in St. James's Street, Westminster, for which he had given 6,000*l.*, and expended upon the same 2,000*l.* more, Sir Thomas purposed to mortgage in security for the said 30,548*l.* for the trusts specified in the Will of Henry Whistler.

The Decree contains much minutiae respecting the Webster Family. The children of Sir Thomas were all portioned by Sir Godfrey, their grandfather; and the daughters received little or no fortune from Sir Thomas on their marriage; yet, on the death of Lady Webster, they were left only 500*l.* each; and Sir Whistler's share of Henry Whistler's property, independent of what he derived from his father, Sir Thomas, was 68,000*l.* This excited complaints among the others, the children of Sir Thomas; and the power of Lady Webster to dispose so unequitably the property derived from her grandfather was questioned. Her Will, however, by this judgment, was held valid, and the appointments therein contained ordered to be established and carried into execution.

Deeds and Evidences relative to the Manor of Robertsbridge, during the period it was possessed by the Sidneys, Earls of Leicester; of which family it was purchased by SIR THOMAS WEBSTER, Bart., by the produce of the Sale of the Landed Property of Lady Webster's grandfather, Henry Whistler, Esq.

Recites this to be the remnant of a Lease, of Udiham Farms, with the

After the decease of the Countess, Richard, Earl of Clanrickarde, and the Lady Frances, Countess of Clanrickarde, his wife, in right of the said Lady Frances, evicted and recovered the same against Robert, Earl of Leicester, cousin and next heir to the said Countess of Rutland, by whom, in consideration of a certain sum, another eviction and recovery was made. By these indentures, the Earl leases the said Iron House for seven years, and sells all the timber growing upon lands, parcel of the Udiham Farm, viz., Cotterell's, Calcott's, Wimblecott's, Hollow Whale Lamphfield, upper part of Welland Wood, lower part of Welland Wood, Holland Wood, the Bovier's Shawes, Stock Wood, Great Morgey Wood, with the Shawes in the Field, &c.

Ongar Park was parcel of two hundred acres of land in the parishes of Stamford Rivers, High Ongar, and Stapleford Tawney, which were forfeited to the Queen's use, as part of the possessions of Edward Shelton, a fugitive, evidently a Papist, who had fled beyond seas. These lands were granted by the Queen to Edward Felton, of London, Gent., with certain reservations to the above David Wilkyn, who, in this lease, guards especially the manorial rights of "all maner of game of huntunge, hawkinge, fyshinge, and fowlinge, only to the said David Wilkyn."

Tythes of Ongar.—Verdict for ROWLAND BOWYER, Farmer of the Manor of Ongar, against DR. TABOR, Incumbent of the Parsonage of High Ongar, Hilary Term, 1594; with other Law-Papers in the Controversy for the establishing a Claim of Tythes in the Manor of Ongar, during the close of the Reign of Q. Elizabeth, and that of her successor, King James the First.

In or about 1572, William Coles, D.D, then Incumbent of the Parsonage of High Ongar, made a claim for Tythes in kind of William Felton, then owner or lessee of the Manor of Ongar Park, which led to a suit in law, Felton dying before the same was determined. After Felton's death, Humphrey Shelton, on the part of Joan Felton, the widow, effected a composition for the Tythes to come, and for the arrearage of the past; he granting a lease of the said commuted Tythes for a definite period, or so long as he should hold the same Parsonage. Dr. Coles died in 1578, 20 Eliz., and was succeeded by William Taber, D.D.; who, after much entreaty by the widow Felton, granted a lease on the same commuted terms, of three pounds annually for the said Tythes so long as he should remain Incumbent.

On the death of Joan Felton, the lands were the inheritance of Humphrey Shelton, who became a fugitive, and his possessions were forfeited to the Queen; who, by her letters patent, granted the same, for so long a period as the said Humphrey Shelton should remain a fugitive, to Edmond Felton, of London, Gent. He granted under-leases to William Bird, John Serjeant, and Rowland Bowyer, of whom Dr. Taber sought by law his Tythes in kind; in one trial he obtained a verdict, and in another was nonsuited. Of these trials, there are here some documents. Humphrey Shelton died, and the lands were discharged out of the Queen's hands to William Shelton, who took the profits of the said Manor.

Dr. Taber died, and was succeeded by William Pemberton, D.D., who solicited of William Shelton the Tythes in kind of such land as lay in Ongar, which he refusing, Pemberton brought his action in the King's Bench, in Easter Term, 1618, and obtained a verdict. Shelton evaded this, and obtained leave for two other trials, and before the determination of the same, died.

William Copley having purchased the lands, Pemberton exhibited his Bill of Reviver, at Michaelmas Term, 1621, against him, and Robert Napper, Executor of William Shelton, and Daniel Shelton as heir general of the said William Shelton.

Dr. Pemberton died, and Tomlinson succeeded. He got ready his Bill of Reviver against William Copley, who died before the same could be exhibited; and he, therefore, by advice, brought the same against Sir Robert Burke, and others, to whom conveyance of the lands had been made for the sale of them, and the payment of his, the said Copley's debts. Tomlinson pursued them by two Bills in Chancery, but an appeal to the Court of Wards and Liveries was followed by a Decree, in 1627, among these papers, which directed a stay of all proceedings during the non-age of Copley's female heirs, and directed the lands to be held in the mean time Tythe free.

CHARLES THE FIRST, Commission to William Lord Petre, of Writtle; William Lord Maynard; John Bramston, Serjeant-at-Law, and John Wright, Esq., for the distinguishing and setting forth of the Boundaries of the Parishes of High Ongar and Stanford Rivers. Witnessed by Sir Robert Naunton, Knt., Master of the Court of Wardes and Liveries. Feb. 22, 1626-7.

The Commission was occasioned by the suit of Mary Copley and Anne Copley, Plaintiffs, in the said Court, against Josias Tomlinson, Clerk, Parson of Ongar, Defendant. Sir Richard Minshull's Autograph endorsements says it was "never executed."

SIR ROBERT NAUNTON, Knt., Master of the Court of Wardes and Liveries, Decree in the cause, Mary and Anne Copley, Plaintiffs, and Josias Tomlinson, Clerk, Parson of Ongar, Defendant, ordering the stay of all Proceedings during the non-age of the Wards, and that Sir Robert Brooks and others, as the Tenants of the said Lands, of the Manor of Ongar, should hold the same Tythe-Free. Dated Trinity Term, 1627.

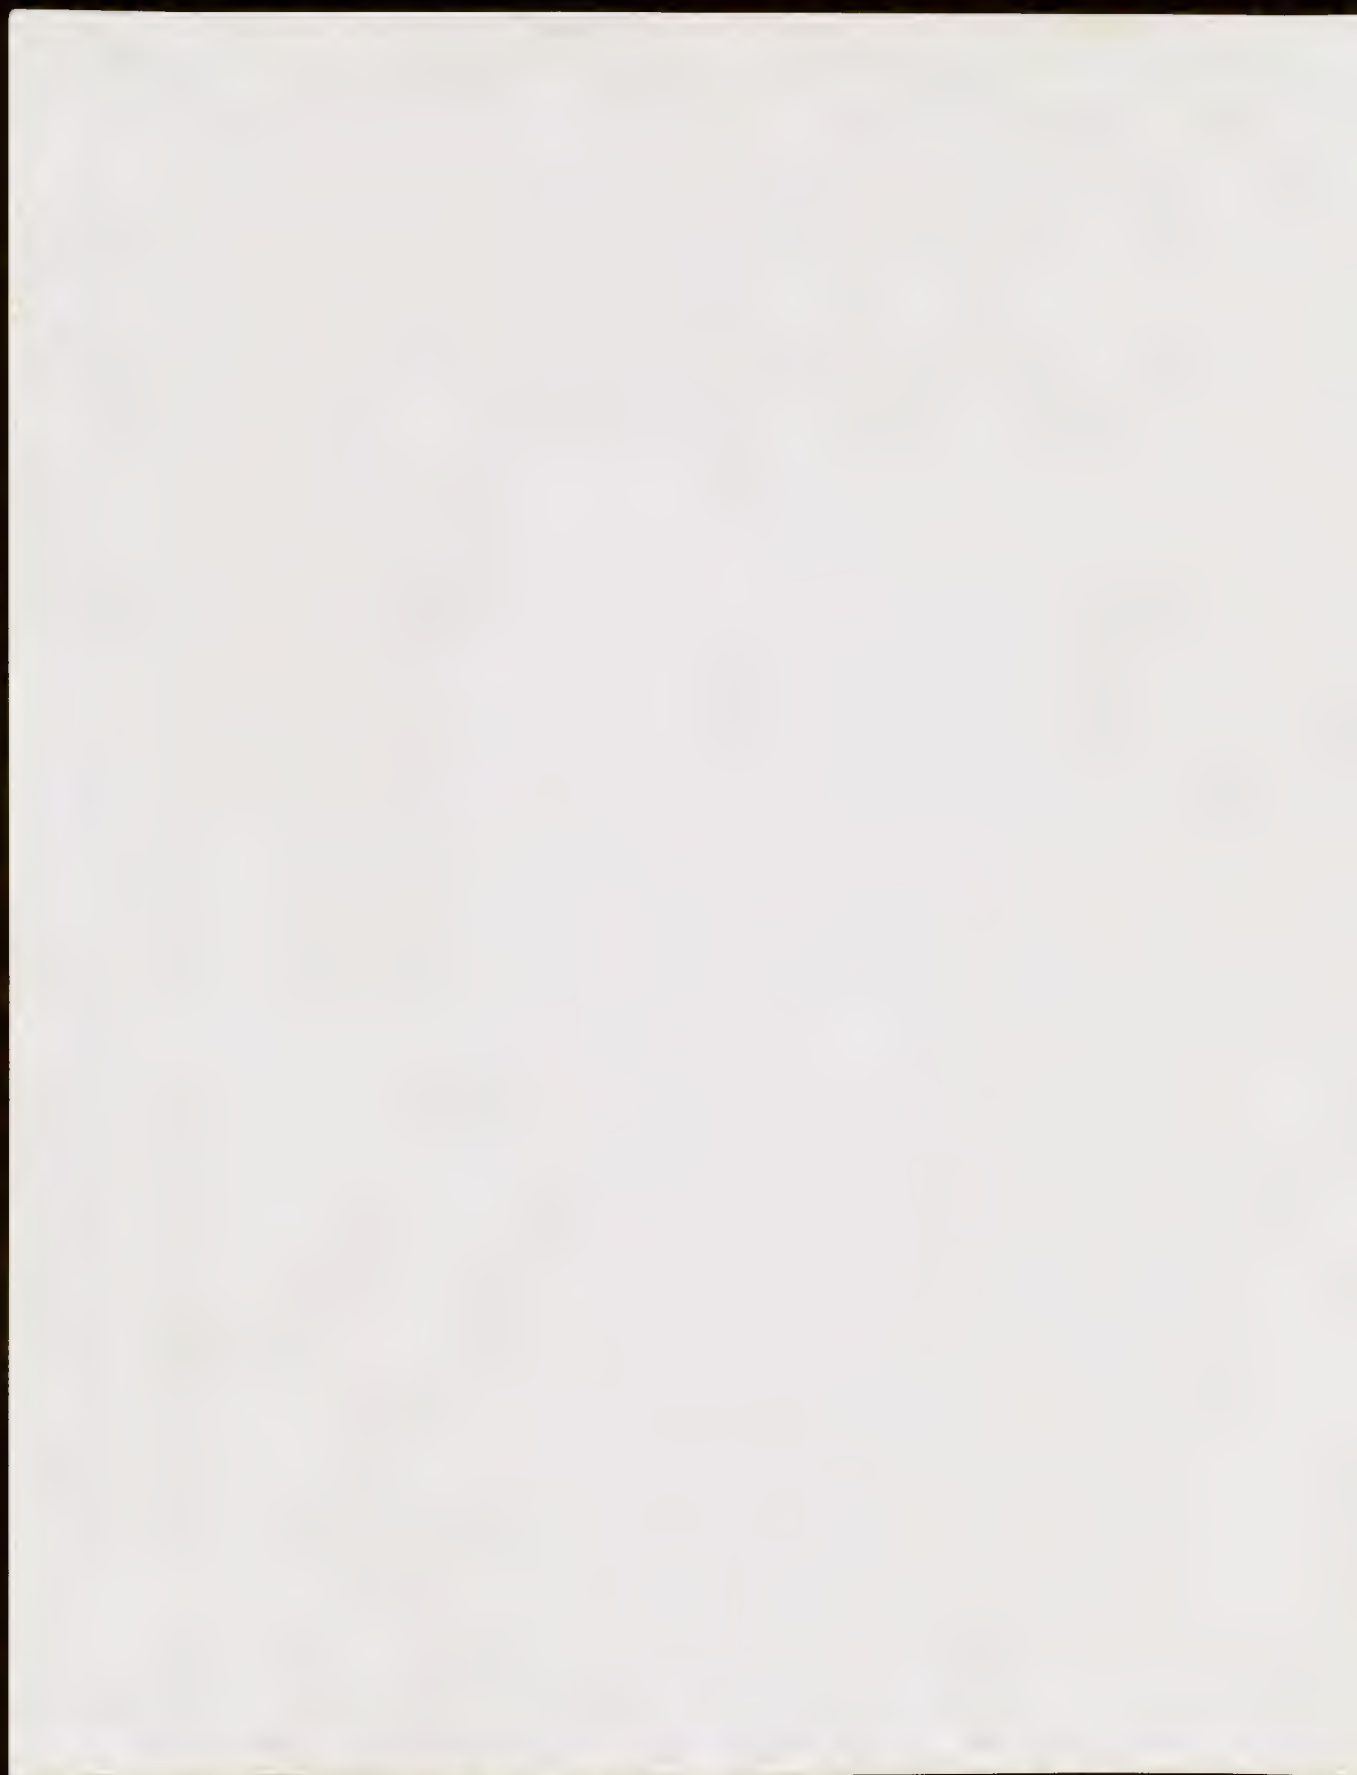

Highly valuable, as fully detailing the disputes between the Incumbents of High Ongar, since 1572, with the owners, farmers, or lessees of the Manor of Ongar, for establishing a claim of Tythes, to the year 1627.

Mary and Anne Copley were the infant daughters and heirs of William Copley, who, after having purchased the Manor of Ongar, finding his dissolution near, conveyed the same to Sir Robert Brooks and others, July 2, 1623, for the payment of his debts, the surplusage of the proceeds, if any, to be paid to Anne, his wife. He died July 5 following, and his children becoming the wards of his Majesty, an inquisition was taken by Thomas Freeman, Esq., Escheator for the County, at Stratford-Langton, Feb. 24, 1624, when it was found that the deceased, William Copley, was seized in the demesne in fee of the Manor and Park of Ongar, the same being held of the King by Knight's Service in capite. As the claim for tythes seriously affected the third of the estate, claimed by the King for the wards, it was owing to this cause that a decree so favourable to them was emulgated.

RT. HON. SIR RICHARD MINSHULL, of Bourton, co. Bucks, Knight, created by the late King Charles, Lord Minshull, of Minshull, in Cheshire,* and VISCOUNT MINSHULL, of Lemster, in Herefordshire, and RICHARD MINSHULL, Esq., one of the sons of the said Sir Richard, &c., Indenture reciting that bearing date March 21, 1656, between him and his Lady, Richard, Thomas, and John, his three sons, and others; declares his consent that Richard, his son, may revoke, alter, and determine, any the uses or estates concerning any Manors or Lands, co. Bucks, saving such as are mentioned in a provisoe of that Deed, to be excepted; and accordingly doth revoke. Jan. 9, 1657.

Jan. 9, 1657.

RT. HON. SIR RICHARD MINSHULL, of Bourton, Knt., created by the late King Charles, Lord Minshull, &c. RICHARD MINSHULL, Esq., one of the sons of the said Sir Richard, THOMAS MINSHULL, and JOHN MINSHULL, other sons of the said Sir RICHARD MINSHULL, GEOFFREY MINSHULL, of Burtherton, co. Chester, Gent., and HENRY STICH, of Orpington, in Kent, Lease, for a year, to Thomas Stanley, of Comberloe, in the Parish of Clothhall, co. Hertford, Esq. and Simon Neale, of St. Clement Danes, Gent. of the Manors, or reputed Manors, of Bourton, with numerous alias's, Skirrets and Durrants, in Bourton aforesaid, with all Lands, Rights, &c. except the Honour of Gifford and Manor of Buckingham Castle Farm, and Borough of Buckingham, their Rights, Immunities, &c. Jan. 15, 1657. Counterpart of the same Lease, or Deed of Sale, with the Signatures of Stanley and Neale.

* Sir N. H. Nicolas, in his Synopsis of the Peerage, vol. ii. p. 427, says, "John Minshull is said by many writers to have been created Baron Minshull, of Minshull, co. Cheshire, in 1642; and it is stated that the title became extinct on his death. Dugdale, however, takes no notice of such a peer. The probability is, that the patent was never regularly executed; for Banks, in his Dormant and Extinct Peerage, asserts that the said John Minshull left issue male, whose descendants in the male line are still existing, and who, it may be presumed, would assert their claim to the dignity, if a valid one could be preferred." It will be seen from this Document, that these genealogists are all in error. It was Sir Richard Mynshull or Minshull, for the name is subscribed by himself both ways, who was ennobled, or intended to be so. In the Settlement of the Manor of Bourton, &c., as a jointure on his lady, Alice, the da. of Sir Humphrey Lee, dated Jan. 30, 1638-9, he designates himself "Sir Richard Mynshull, of Bourton, in the county of Buckingham, Knight, and one of her Majestie's Councill." The creation, possibly, did not extend beyond a verbal declaration. John Minshull was the youngest of his three sons; what issue he left does not appear by these papers. Richard Minshull, Esq., of Bourton, the eldest son, appears to have declined in fortune, survived his wife, and left an only daughter, his heir.
